—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DR. STERLING and fellow explorers for the Smithsonian Institute have been visiting the Jivaros, strange, undersized South American savages that live near the headwaters of the Amazon.

Those savages would not understand you if you quoted:

"When Adam delved and Eve span, who was then the gentleman?"

For among Jivaros, women do the delving, digging, all hard labor, while men sit all day and spin cotton used to make their dainty skirts, of which they are very proud.

THEY HAVE one "manly" occupation, head-hunting. The most important Jivaro is he that shows the greatest number of heads chopped from the enemy. One old chief, much honored in the tribe, possesses 60 skulls.

We all say:

"Monstrous that even the lowest savage should collect heads of other men, of no use to the collector."

To a future generation it will seem equally monstrous that even the lowest savage should collect and accumulate money, of no use to him, and needed by others.

STARS, AFTER their long idleness, are put to work, as Niagara was harnessed after running uselessly for a million years.

First you hear that light from the star Arcturus, which develops only one billionth of an ampere electrically at the earth's surface, will be amplified and made to start the electrical machinery in the new Chicago exposition.

And, now, that ardent young businessman, Albert D. Lasker, who cares no more about a big advertising account than he does about a million dollars, sends word that next Sunday the New York Central's 18-hour "Twentieth Century" will run from New York to Chicago on a "most accurately conceived time schedule, computed for the Elgin Watch Company by Prof. F. D. Urie, which will check the star Omikron Leonis."

It takes light 118 years, going 186,000 miles a second, to come here from Omikron Leonis, and it is just 118 years since the first steam carriage was run in England.

THIS WILL interest Rufus Dawes, head of the Chicago Exposition. It only takes the light 40 years to come from his star, Arcturus. Other stars, like Aldebaran, Betelgeuse, and the "Dog Star itself, may worry. Lasker is sure to put them to work somehow.

It would 've taken the first railroad built in the United States 62 hours to make the trip that the "Twentieth Century" will now make in 18 hours. That is progress. And by utilizing light rolling stock, and other devices which this writer is prepared to divulge, that trip will be cut to nine hours, and less.

HAVE YOU noticed the British pound sterling? It "slipped" badly day before yesterday and again yesterday. And the British do not repine. According to some of our wise financiers, Great Britain would like the pound to go lower, for reasons which shall be expounded.

The British have recently established a special emergency fund of 150,000,000 pounds, $750,000,000 at par. Those that ought to know say the British are using this money to buy American gold dollars. The pound slipping makes that seem probable. When a nation uses its money to buy another kind of money its own money suffers.

Perhaps that buying of dollars means that the British are getting ready to resume paying their debts to the United States, when the moratorium ends. If so, three cheers.

WHEN ANY nation is deeply in debt, it helps government to make its money cheap.

France, after the war, owed four hundred billion francs, eighty billions of dollars, a debt that could never have been paid.

The French deliberately cut 80 per cent from the value of their franc, reducing it to less than four cents, and reducing their public debt from eighty billion dollars to less than twenty billion dollars. England and others that lent francs, at the old value, to France, had to take payment at twenty cents on the dollar.

GREAT BRITAIN'S internal debt now amounts to thirty-five billion dollars, a heavy load. If the value of the pound can be cut in two, and the debt paid with cheaper money, that debt will be reduced to about seventeen billion dollars.

Great Britain can reduce the value of her pound by printing plenty of nice bank notes and using them to buy American dollars, which means American gold, and thus two birds will be killed with one stone. That is what some American financiers think is being done.

IT MAY SURPRISE our respectable "gold bugs" to know that yesterday former Senator Owen, who for years was in charge of financial affairs in the Senate, said that going off the gold basis wouldn't make much difference to us, and is an excellent thing for England.

Brigham Young, head of the Mormons, not having any currency, issued I. O. U's good in all Salt Lake City stores. With those I. O. U's, because Brigham Young guaranteed them, Mormons could buy gold dust from miners as easily as they

SPITALE, BITZ QUIT LINDY SEARCH

Go-Betweens Desert Over Failure of Flier to Heed Plea Not to Pay $50,000

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.) — Salvator Spitale and Irving Bitz, who were designated by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to act as intermediaries in the negotiations for the return of his kidnaped son, today withdrew from the world-wide baby hunt.

Abraham Kesselman, lawyer for the men, said the recent payment by Lindbergh of $50,000 to a person believed to have been a representative of the kidnapers was the reason for their withdrawal. Kesselman said:

"I know that Spitale pleaded with Col. Lindbergh not to pay this $50,000 through Dr. Condon. I do not know what prompted him (Spitale) to do so or what information he had on which he based his attitude."

KIDNAPERS UNKNOWN

The ransom money was paid on the night of April 2 by Dr. John F. Condon, known as "Jafsie." The money was handed by Dr. Condon over a fence in St. Raymond's Cemetery, The Bronx, to a man who represented himself as an agent for the abductors. The child was not returned in exchange for the money.

Kesselman said neither Spitale nor Bitz had "any idea as to the identity of the kidnapers."

Spitale and Bitz were appointed "go-betweens" by Col. Lindbergh on March 5, four days after his son was snatched from his crib in the nursery of the flier's New Jersey home in Sourland Mountain.

CURTIS RETURNS

NORFOLK, Va., April 27.—(AP.)—John Hughes Curtis returned to Norfolk this morning from a trip made in the interest of negotiations for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. He would not comment concerning his trip and referred all questions to Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, spokesman for the three Norfolk intermeriaries.

REPORT LINDY CONTACT

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 27.—(AP.)—Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was still missing today, despite a high official's declaration that Lindbergh is understood to have made a personal contact with the baby's kidnapers.

This contact is reported to have been made in Virginia while the colonel was away from his estate last Monday and Tuesday. Police officials denied knowledge of it.

The persons who met Lindbergh were understood to be the same group which received $50,000 ransom recently and then failed to return the child.

Temple Once More Wins Nomination

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 27.—Dr. Henry W. Temple, dean of the Republican delegation in Congress, was conceded today to have been renominated over Dr. A. S. Sickman, of North Charleroi, in the Twenty-fifth District. Sickman, campaigning as an anti-dry, polled a surprisingly large vote.

Vote Approves City Bonds for Aid of Jobless

Returns from a majority of the city's voting precincts showed the $5,000,000 bond issue designed for unemployment relief, was approved by a comfortable margin.

Tabulations of 307 districts from the city's 406, gave:

Question No. 1—Yes, 54,165; No, 45,080.

Question No. 2—Yes, 53,224; No, 43,719.

Question No. 1 will provide $3,000,000 to be used for food, clothing, fuel and shelter for the city's needy.

Question No. 2 provides $2,000,000 for public improvements, with the jobs created from them to be filled from the ranks of the unemployed.

A $200,000 bond issue to fund borough indebtedness was approved by Oakmont voters.

Homestead approved a $250,000 issue for the same purpose.

Healy Balm Suit Objection Dropped

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—The $250,000 alienation of affections suit brought against Miss Mary Brown Warburton by Betty Healy, actress wife of Ted Healy, came up again in Supreme Court yesterday when the defendant withdrew a motion objecting to her examination before trial.

The papers failed to disclose whether the suit had been discontinued or settled out of court. Mrs. Healy had accused Miss Warburton of giving the comedian costly presents and of entertaining him in Atlantic City and Chicago, among other places.

MULDOWNEY WINS OVER SULLIVAN

Coyne-Backed Councilman Far in Lead; Erk, Kelly, Estep, Campbell Victors

Scattered returns, delayed by a slow count, early today showed that City Councilman M. J. Muldowney, backed by James J. Coyne, apparently was headed for a substantial victory over P. J. Sullivan, the incumbent, in the bitter fight for the congressional nomination from the Thirty-second District.

Muldowney was running strong in all early returns, as the vote climaxed a campaign which, in the Strip, Hill and Soho districts, reached an intensity resulting in frequent fist fights and pitched battles between followers of the rival camps.

INCUMBENTS LEAD

Congressmen Edmund F. Erk, in the Thirteenth District; Clyde Kelly, in the Thirty-first; Harry A. Estep, in the Thirty-third, and Guy E. Campbell, in the Thirty-fourth, all were running well ahead on the face of the tabulations.

Erk's lead assumed its proportions so soon that its unofficial

MRS. CORNELIA BRYCE PINCHOT . . . READING OF POLITICS

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, the Governor's wife, who today conceded her primary election defeat by incumbent Congressman Louis T. McFadden in the Fifteenth Congressional District: "People did not seem as anxious to send me to Congress as I was to go," she admitted today as votes were counted. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

OHIO REPORTER, CRUSADER, SHOT

CANTON, O., April 27.—(AP.)—Harry Bouklias, of the Ohio Examiner, a weekly newspaper which has been waging war on organized crime, was shot and wounded seriously in front of his home here early today by two men hiding near his porch.

Bouklias saved his life by shield himself with a porch chair.

The shooting of Bouklias came just six years after the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton editor, who was assassinated while waging a newspaper war against crime.

Bouklias in 1923 appeared before Gov. Vic Donahey as a chief witness in the hearing which resulted in the outsting of C. C. Curtis as mayor of Canton. Curtis again is mayor of the city.

Bouklias also testified against E. E. Curtis, former safety director under his mayor-brother, who was convicted of accepting a bribe.

Primary Winners On G. O. P. Ticket

Returns continuing to pour in today were giving majorities insuring the Republican nominations of the following in yesterday's state primary.

U. S. Senator . . James J. Davis

State Auditor General Frank Baldwin

State Treasurer . . Charles A. Waters

Allegheny County Congressmen —Edmund F. Erk, Clyde Kelly, Michael J. Muldowney, Harry A. Estep, Guy E. Campbell.

State Senators . . James J. Coyne, Frank J. Harris.

Mercury at 32, Fruit Unharmed

Winter's belated return was not expected to cause great damage to fruit trees in this district, although the thermometer dropped to 32 degrees, equaling the record for this date reached last year. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said he did not believe much damage resulted last night, the blossoms not having recovered from the March freeze, which nipped most of the early fruit. Heavy frosts are forecast for tonight with slowly rising temperature tomorrow.

BLUE LAW FOES, ANTI DRYS WIN

Repeal of the Snyder Act and the Blue Laws were favored by a decisive majority in the nomination of candidates for the Legislature, the latest returns, substantially complete in some districts, show.

Independent candidates broke organization slates in three instances, while in several districts Independents are running strong. In the Sixth District Thomas Gallagher, Independent, is running strong. In the Twelfth District, Renald Thompson, Independent, is among the first four, and in the Thirteenth District an Independent, William A. Walker, is first.

In the only contest for the State Senate in the Forty-third District, Senator James J. Coyne outdistanced his Independent opponent, E. C. Wuerthele, suffi-

MRS. PINCHOT ADMITS DEFEAT

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Pinchot, today conceded defeat in her fight for the Republican nomination in the Fifteenth Congressional District against Representative Louis T. McFadden. She said:

"Surely I concede Mr. McFadden's nomination. People did not seem as anxious to send me to Congress as I was to go."

McFadden also was in the van in the race for the Democratic nomination, leading Charles K. McDonald.

Reds Jeering Rolph In Mooney Case Held

RICHMOND, Va., April 27.—(INS.)—Eight Communists carrying banners assailing Gov. James Rolph, Jr., of California, for the Tom Mooney decision, were arrested today in front of the hotel where the conference of governors is in session.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—John S. Cohen was sworn in today as the new Democratic Senator from Georgia.

SENATOR'S EDGE OVER BUTLER 300,000; PINCHOT SET BACK

Outstanding results of yesterday's Pennsylvania primaries were these:

1. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, made a strong race against Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, in the presidential preferential balloting, trailing by only 3,000 votes in returns from almost half the state. Delegate instructions are not mandatory, but the increase in Smith prestige in Pennsylvania, together with his capture of the entire Massachusetts slate of delegates, gave impetus to the "Stop-Roosevelt" campaign.
2. United States Senator James J. Davis was leading Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler for renomination by more than 300,000 in returns from more than half the districts. Although Butler refused to concede defeat, the vote was considered a smashing blow at prohibition and a serious setback to Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who campaigned for Butler, running as a dry, against Davis on a moist platform.
3. In the four-cornered race for the three Superior Court judgeship nominations, James was leading, Parker was second and Stadtfeld and Gawthrop were fighting it out for the third position.

Allegheny Gives Senator 70,000 Majority Over Ex-Marine General

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—A strong race by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in Pennsylvania's presidential preference primary furnished the principal interest today, with data still lacking on how the delegates will cast their 76 votes at the national convention.

With more than one-third of the count completed, Smith trailed Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt by little more than 3,000 votes. The preferential expression is not binding on the delegates, but political observers inclined to the view that Smith's strong showing had increased his prestige.

3,361 PRECINCTS IN

The vote from 3,361 of the state's 8,181 precincts gave Roosevelt 51,375 to Smith's 48,661.

In the Republican senatorial race Senator James J. Davis, up for re-nomination, held a lead of nearly 300,000 votes over Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, but Butler refused to concede defeat.

Returns from 5,096 of 8,181 districts were: Davis, 630,283; Butler 329,602.

W. S. Adams, a third candidate, was so far behind that it appeared unlikely he would prevent Davis from winning by a clear majority.

This figure included complete returns from Philadelphia, where the plurality of Davis was 181,819. He carried the Vare stronghold by more than 4 to 1.

PINCHOT HIT

The vote pointed to a damaging blow to the political sway of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, as well as an expression of strong sentiment against prohibition.

The Governor, leader of an independent faction, supported the fiery former Marine officer as he has no other candidate. He stumped much of the state with

By MARK SHIELDS

In what is apparently an overwhelming indorsement of his stand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act, Senator James J. Davis has received in Allegheny County a majority over Gen. Smedley Butler of approximately 80,000 in the battle for the Republican senatorial nomination.

As late returns have been tabulated, Davis' majority has climbed steadily, his gains being evenly maintained in reports from city districts and precincts in the boroughs and townships of Allegheny County. With two-thirds of the county districts reported, Davis has a lead of more than 70,000.

In the United States Senatorial fight, 624 out of the 932 districts in the city and county give:

Davis	126,100

PROHIBITION ANGLE

The best illustration of the manner in which the prohibition question affected the senatorial fight is the vote of the same districts for Ralph Flinn and Frank Baldwin, candidates for Auditor General. Flinn and Butler were backed by Independent Republicans while Davis and Baldwin were on the same slate. The dry issue played no part in the Baldwin-Flinn tangle, and Flinn was leading Baldwin by approximately 15,000 in Allegheny despite efforts of the Republican organization for Baldwin.

In the Auditor General contest, 624 out of the 935 districts in the city and county give:

Baldwin	65,029
Flinn	86,562

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, supported by both Independents and Regulars for nomination to the Superior Court, was far ahead of former Lieut. Gov. Arthur James and Judges Robert Gawthrop and William M. Parker in the Allegheny County vote, but other counties in the state were returning totals which put James and Parker in the lead for two of the three nominations to be made, and left the third place a close fight between Stadtfeld and Gawthrop.

Butler Refuses to Concede Defeat by Davis

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—Despite the fact that returns from more than half the state in the Republican primary gave Senator James J. Davis a lead of 252,718 for renomination, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, his Pinchot-backed prohibitionist opponent, refused today to concede defeat. The former Marine said:

"I will make no statement until I know just how the people voted all over the state."

Senator Davis, however, took the results so far as conclusive and thanked his supporters for "the fine vote," asserting:

"The vote shows that it pays to play fair in public as well as in private life. Throughout the campaign I refrained from dealing in personalities. To resort to such methods, is, in my mind, a sign of weakness."

Gov. Pinchot attributed the defeat of the candidates he supported to "an unexplainable eddy" of politics. As he studied the returns with Mrs. Pinchot over their morning coffee in their suite at the Bellevue-Stratford, to which they had retired at 2:30 a. m., he said:

"Counties which voted two, three, four or five to one 18 months ago against the wet Vare candidates, now break even or give only small majorities.

"Gen. Butler was beaten by the dry church members who failed to vote. The stay-at-homes are responsible for victory of the wet Vare ticket.

"We fought and we lost and we live to fight another day."

Victory Indicated For Mrs. Scranton

SCRANTON, Pa., April 27.—(AP.)—Returns from half of the districts in Lackawanna County indicate the re-election of Mrs. Worthington Scranton as Republican State Committeewoman over Miss Hazel Davies. Mrs. Scranton had the backing of the state organization, while Miss Davies was supported by Gov. Pinchot.

A total of 121 out of 247 election districts gave Mrs. Scranton 17,687, Miss Davies 10,483.

HONOLULU TENSELY AWAITS DARROW PLEA IN HONOR TRIAL

FREEDOM OF 4 AMERICANS AT STAKE

Defense, Prosecution Chiefs Set for Final Arguments In Massie Case Climax

BULLETIN.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 27.—(INS.)—Request by Clarence Darrow for an instructed verdict of not guilty for the four defendants in the Massie-Fortescue trial was refused by Judge Charles S. Davis, International News Service learned today.

By FRAZIER HUNT.

Famous Author, Magazine Writer and War Correspondent.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 27.—All Honolulu waits impatiently today to hear the old lion, Clarence Darrow, roar.

They also wait to hear the closing arguments of the hero chief prosecutor, John C. Kelley.

Yesterday was warming-up day with second-string debaters. Everyone from jury to spectators felt this was only the marking of time for the climax today.

FATE RESTS ON DARROW

For today "the old lion" faces the jury, and in his experienced hands rests the fate of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and his co-defendants, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Albert S. Jones and E. J. Lord.

It seemed impossible that such tense and tragic possibilities are hidden in the quiet courtroom.

Outside palm fronds rustle. Now and then could be heard the hum of a naval airplane. Inside Assistant Prosecutor Ulrich droned along asking the mixed jury to bring in a verdict of second degree murder against the four defendants.

DEFENDANTS CALM

They sat calm, unmoved, Mrs. Fortescue looking straight in front of her, while the three men might have been only slightly interested judges at a mildly exciting debate on, say, capital punishment.

One juror enjoyed his gum, while Father Kahahawai, sitting next to the jury box, wept copiously.

There was one important point stressed by Ulrich. He intimated the prosecution had scored heavily against Massie's insanity plea when he told the jurors they would be instructed by the court that the defense showing Massie was insane at the moment he killed Kahawawai would not be sufficient to clear him.

Ulrich declared the insanity plea could not be considered unless Darrow proved Massie was insane from the time his wife was attacked until the end of the tragedy.

SENTIMENT DIVIDED

After Ulrich closed his plea and following a recess, Darrow's mate, George S. Leisure, began the opening argument for the defense. For a moment the air was vibrant as he asked:

"Do you suppose the appetite for cruelty of this man who attacked Mrs. Massie and broke both her jaws would have been satiated with one night of drunken debauchery?"

Then Leisure lapsed into driving home the idea that Kahahawai was lured to the Fortescue cottage only to extract a confession. The whole courtroom knew he was only breaking ground for the old master, Darrow.

Now he had finished and the judge was admonishing the jury not to discuss the case among themselves.

Then the jury filed out and court adjourned until today—the today that the whole world is waiting for.

In every home in every business house, only the trial was discussed. The feeling is by no means unanimous. In the courtroom it was visibly evident that the white women are definitely pro-Massie but the community is squarely divided.

Kentucky G. O. P. Pledged to Hoover

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27.—(AP.)—Kentucky Republicans met here today in state convention with their 26 delegates to the national convention at Chicago assured for President Hoover as a result of almost unanimous indorsement of his administration at county mass meetings last week.

Chief interest of the state meeting centered on the problem adjusting the party machinery to the state's new congressional district map, which calls for only nine districts compared with the 11 in former years.

VOLPE PAROLED IN ATTACK CASE

Joseph Volpe, 19, youngest of the Volpe brothers, former political bosses of Wilmerding, and two of his companions, Michael Masters and James Nordus, were fined $25 each and paroled for one year by Visiting Judge O. C. Kent today.

They were found guilty last week of charges of assault and battery brought by Police Capt. Thomas J. Conlin of Wilmerding following their arrest February 29. Counter charges were filed against Conlin. He was acquitted.

Before sentence was pronounced today, Councilman Joseph R. Dick, of Wilmerding, testified that several days before the disturbance, James Volpe, a brother of Joseph, had told him:

"Many of the boys around here are willing to spend 30 to 60 days in the workhouse for the pleasure of cleaning up the new police department."

MUNHALL BLAST VERDICT CUT

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court today directed a $50,845 verdict for personal injuries obtained by George E. Thirkell of Munhall be reduced to $33,375 or else a new trial is to be awarded to the Equitable Gas Company.

Thirkell was injured in a gas explosion which wrecked the post-office building in Munhall and killed his wife. He was a labor foreman employed by the Carnegie Steel Company and earning $170 monthly at the time.

The court in another opinion affirmed a judgment of $23,000 obtained by Martin King, who was a passenger in a trolley car passing the postoffice building. He suffered permanent injuries.

Ambassador Willys To Resign in June

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—John N. Willys, American ambassador to Poland who yesterday called upon President Hoover and Acting Secretary of State Carr, today announced his resignation, effective some time in June.

TOLEDO, O., April 27.—(AP.)—John N. Willys was re-elected chairman of the board of Willys-Overland Company yesterday at about the same time he tendered his resignation in Washington as ambassador to Poland.

French Olympic Athletes Denied Wine by U. S.

PARIS, April 27.—(INS.)—The United States has refused to allow French Olympic athletes their daily litre of wine while competing in the games at Los Angeles next summer, it was announced today.

Charles Dennis, secretary of the French Olympiads, said he had been notified through the Quai D'Orsay of the American decision.

The athletes themselves, hearing the news, were pretty much upset about it.

They, and the rest of their countrymen with them, had hoped the athletes would at least be allowed the privileges of French sailors, who get a daily litre of wine while traveling—no matter where they are.

But as it is now, the French contestants will have to bear up under the inconveniences of prohibition and drink their wine, if at all, on the sly.

Dennis flayed the attitude of the United States on the matter as "most unsporting."

REPUBLIC AIM OF DE VALERA

DUBLIN, April 27.—(AP.)—President Eamon De Valera, moving the second reading of his bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown, told the Free State Dail today that the moment the Irish people are ready for an independent republic, he will be ready to lead them.

The abolition bill was brought up immediately after the government had been defeated by 74 to 66 on a vote in connection with the unemployment issue. The President made it clear that he had no intention of resigning on that vote.

On the contrary, he went right ahead with the day's business, smiling as he moved second reading of the abolition bill. He said later that the Dail would debate the unemployment question again.

Dole Unpaid, Polish Jobless Storm Hall

ZYRARDOW, Poland, April 27.—(AP.)—Because the treasury was unable to pay unemployment doles, the jobless yesterday stormed the City Hall and demolished several offices. The police quelled the disturbance after several had been cut with knives.

2 FACE HEARING ON OHIO BLAST

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP.)—Two men held here as automobile thieves and suspects in the explosion that killed 10 and injured 53 at the unfinished Ohio State Office Building in Columbus April 14, must submit their legal reasons today why they should not be extradited there.

The men, Edward B. Wallace, an ex-convict, and Frank Wilson, both of Columbus, were arrested here last week, but the police did not reveal their detention until yesterday. They said the car Wallace and Wilson were driving was stolen at Columbus and contained dynamite, a welding torch and other tools.

Police said Wallace admitted having been employed recently in a "tunnel" under the state building.

MILLS, MEYER WARN AGAINST CASH BONUS

Treasury Head Declares Patman Bill Proposes to Pay With 'Dishonest' Money

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Solemn warnings against tampering with the currency were voiced today before the House Ways and Means Committee by the heads of the nation's financial departments.

Secretary Mills and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the committee that issuance of two billion dollars of new currency under the Patman bill for full payment of the soldiers' bonus would endanger the confidence of the whole world in the United States.

MONEY "NOT HONEST"

Mills said the measure was designed to "pay an obligation not due in money that is not honest." He continued:

"The measure now before you is designed to pay an obligation not due, in money that is not honest. The adjusted service certificates do not mature until 1945. To pay them at their face value today, less the amount that has been borrowed on them, would, in effect, almost double the payment provided for by the adjusted service compensation act and would involve an immediate cost to the government of about $2,400,000,000.

"To select this moment to destroy our hopes of a balanced budget and to deal a smashing blow to national confidence, is to me simply incomprehensible.

"For a great, powerful nation deliberately to adopt this insidious and essentially dishonest device would to my mind be worse than an act of financial bankruptcy. It would constitute moral bankruptcy."

OPPOSES BORROWING

Though he thus dealt chiefly with the Patman bill for an issue of Treasury notes to cash bonus, Mills attacked arguments of those who advocate borrowing the necessary funds. He said:

"The financial position of the government is not such as to permit the Treasury to meet this demand. We are faced with an enormous deficit. No additional $2,400,000,000 can be raised by taxation."

Then, reminding the committee of his own veteran status and service in organizing the American Legion, Mills said:

"Nothing will persuade me that the men who 15 years ago stood ready to give their lives to their country in the crisis of war, are today, in a crisis which in so far as human misery and suffering in this country are concerned, far exceeds anything experienced during the war years, really seeking this huge grant of $2,400,000,000, the effect of which will be to impair public and private credit, to destroy confidence and to prolong the depression."

16 on Probation After Harvard Riot

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 27.—(AP.)—Sixteen Harvard students—14 freshmen and two upperclassmen—have been placed on probation because of their participation in the disturbance which threw the Harvard Square district into an uproar last Thursday night.

The action was taken at a special meeting of the Harvard Administrative Board yesterday. None of the students' names was disclosed.

Chain Store Man Robbed by Bandit

Forced to lie on his face behind the counter of a P. H. Butler store 137 South Eighteenth street this morning, Joseph Wild, manager, was robbed of $24 by an armed holdup man. The robber took $18 from the cash register and $6 from Wild's pocket.

STATE CHIEFS AWAIT HOOVER

By RAYMOND L. BORST
International News Service.

RICHMOND, Va., April 27.—The national spotlight was focused on this old city of Virginia today with President Hoover and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt scheduled to address the conference of governors.

An undercurrent of excitement gripped the conference because of the prospective meeting between the President and the New York executive.

It will mark the first time the President has addressed the conference. A formal invitation was extended him Sunday by the executive committee after word was received from Washington that he would like to come.

President Hoover is expected to discuss economy and taxation at the afternoon session, while Gov. Roosevelt's subject at night will be "George Washington."

Both President Hoover's address this afternoon and Gov. Roosevelt's tonight at 10:30 will be heard here through radio station WCAE.

Weather Conditions.

A high pressure area centered over the prairie states is dominating the weather over most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. There is considerable cloudiness over the Atlantic Coast states and over the western plains and Rocky Mountain states and it is snowing this morning in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Wyoming, Colorado, and Northern New Mexico. The cloudiness and precipitation in the West is due to low pressure stretching from British Columbia southward to Arizona.

It is colder than yesterday over practically all the country from the central plains eastward, while over the Northwest temperatures are rising. Freezing temperatures extend as far south as Central Kansas, and in the east over Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising slowly. Stage at Franklin is 3.9 feet. Parkers Landing (10 locks No. 7, 12.5. Pittsburgh (11 locks No. 4, 9.2. Davis No. 2, 6.6. Davis No. 16, 10.2, and Davis No. 12, 10.0. The rivers will rise slowly. Between 12 and 12.5 feet expected at Pittsburgh Thursday morning.

HENRY FORD saw President Hoover yesterday, and advocated a plan for combining farming and industry. He says factory workers, raising their own vegetables, could save five hundred dollars a year.

They could, but not everybody has Henry Ford's versatility.

Thousands of men born on farms, working all their lives as farmers, do not raise their own vegetables, because they are "farmers not gardeners." This is an age of specialists, nevertheless, every worker that can, should have his plot of ground, chickens and vegetable garden, for the health and education of his children.

PROBERS OUST HOOVER MAN

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Secret plans for a thorough investigation of the New York stock market were worked out today at an executive meeting of the steering committee of the Senate Banking Committee. The steering committee was completed today and Senator Walcott (Rep.), of Connecticut, who originally sponsored the inquiry, was not included in its membership.

Chairman Norbeck, of the Banking Committee, named Senator Townsend (Rep.), of Delaware, to the group, other members of which in addition to Norbeck are Senators Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan; Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, and Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida.

Formation of the committee takes the leadership away from the administration group which originally sponsored the investigation into charges of bear raiding.

INCREASED TAX ON INCOMES APPROVED

Senate Committee Votes To Raise House Rates; War Time Levy Beaten

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—The Senate Finance Committee voted today to double almost all along the line the income tax rates of the nation's individual taxpayers.

In a dash of speed, the committee rewrote the income tax schedule of the House revenue bill, accepted the high inheritance and gift levies voted by the House and took up the question of higher corporation levies.

All normal income tax rates were boosted above the increases provided by the House, and the maximum surtax rate was raised from 40 to 45 per cent.

The new income levies—the highest since the war—were approved with only one dissenting vote, virtually assuring adoption by the Senate.

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, voted against the income schedule after a proposal of his to revise the even higher wartime surtaxes was rejected, 11 to 7.

Normal income rates were boosted to 3 per cent on the first $4,000 income; 6 per cent on the next $4,000 and 9 per cent on the income above $8,000.

The present normal rates are 1½, 3 and 5 per cent. The House voted to increase these rates to 2, 4 and 7 per cent respectively.

SMITH TRAILS IN COUNTY

Allegheny County Democrats will send a large majority of their delegates to the party's national convention in Chicago next June favoring Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, as the presidential nominee. In each of the five Congressional districts Roosevelt men were leading Smith supporters on incomplete returns.

Two delegates are to be chosen by each party in each district. The partial returns showed:

Thirtieth District, Republican—One hundred and six districts out of 185: Trees, 18,336; McKnight, 18,112; Lawrence, 10,709.

Democrat—One hundred and six districts: Houlahen, 605; McGinnis, 567; Mayers, 247; Ihmsen, 234. The two leaders are Roosevelt men.

Thirty-first District, Democrat—One hundred and four out of 212 districts: Haughey, 406; Turner, 364; McDonald, 354; Smith, 212. The two leaders are Roosevelt men.

Thirty-second District, Republican—Eighty districts out of 130: Leslie, 14,944; Bonitz, 10,893; Cook, 5,234; Weller, 4,361.

Democrat—Ninety-one districts: McNair, 185; Lozsoon, 167; O'Connell, 139; Diamond, 116; Mooney, 94. The two leaders are Roosevelt men.

Thirty-third District, Republican—One hundred and eighteen out of 170 districts: Mackrell, 21,837; Clark, 16,448; McArdle, 14,032; Magee, 10,431.

Democrat—One hundred and six districts: Fagan, 453; Frey, 372; O'Neil, 354; Humes, 289; Anderson, 279. The two leaders are Roosevelt men.

Thirty-fourth District, Republican—67 districts outof 239: McWhinney, 8,544; Duff, 7,543; Haddock, 5,061; Nixon, 4,424.

Democrat—101 districts: McCarthy, 295; Delaney, 286; Burns, 272; Riott, 265. Both the leaders are Roosevelt men.

Delegates at-Large, Democrat—400 out of 935 districts (8 delegates to be chosen): Lynett, 1,963; Gilmore, 1,831; Bard, 1,820; Short, 1,770; Campbell, 1,767; Donohoe, 1,662; Van Dyke, 1,595; Kistler, 1,347; Niles, 1,327; Morris, 1,253; Collins, 1,241; McDevitt, 1,178; Cassidy 1,143; Shull, 727.

Marlene Dietrich, Cagney Suspended By Studios

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—(AP.)—Marlene Dietrich, blonde beauty from Germany, and James Cagney, two of the best money making performers in motion pictures, had been suspended by their studios today because of disputes over their work and salary, respectively.

Hardly more than 24 hours after Paramount studio suspended Josef von Sternberg, noted director and discoverer of Miss Dietrich, she was lopped off the payroll for not showing up for work on a picture which Sternberg had refused to direct.

At the Warner studio, it was said that notice of suspension had been sent to Cagney, who had been holding out for $4,000 a week instead of the $1,600 he has received under a long-term contract.

Miss Dietrich was ordered to be on the set ready for work yesterday on the picture "The Blonde Venus," under the direction of Richard Wallace, it was said at the office of B. P. Schulberg, Paramount executive.

She did not appear and did not send an explanation, so suspension was ordered.

While there was no further announcement from Schulberg's office, it was understood that court actions against the actress and Von Sternberg, now on a New York visit, are being prepared.

POLICEMAN BEATEN, POLL STONED IN NEW VOTE VIOLENCE

OFFICER LINKS COUNCILMAN IN ATTACK

Says Little Watched Pugilist Slug Him; Overseer Cut As Crowd Hurls Missiles

A patrolman was attacked and a polling place was stoned, injuring an overseer, in the turbulent Twenty-first Ward early today as factional strife flared anew with the counting of primary election ballots.

Patrolman Robert D Thompson reported to Woods Run Station that he was attacked and beaten while near the Conroy School, 1308 Page street, as Councilman Harry A Little and Alderman George Gibson looked on from an automobile.

Thompson named as his assailant, Arnold Thornburg, former pugilist. A teletype order was sent out to arrest Thornburg, police said.

AUTOISTS HURL BRICKS

Two bricks were hurled from a passing automobile through windows of the polling place of the Tenth District, 1235 California avenue, as the tabulation of votes indicated the Frederick-Faulkner faction was running ahead of that headed by Councilman Little and Ward Chairman William Herd.

A crowd gathered nd other missles crashed through the windows, according to George Jackson, judge of election. Charles Cook, an overseer of 1301 Stranmore street, was cut on the hand by a shower of shattered glass. He was treated at St. John's Hospital. The crowd dispersed before police, summoned by radio, arrived.

G. R. Roberts, 33, of 1012 Sheffield street, arrested at the polling place of the First District, Twenty-first Ward, yesterday, was discharged by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court today.

FAULKNER RESUMES RULE

Patrolman Thomas O'Bronovich testified Roberts was "very disorderly," and had no business at the polling place. Roberts testified he had voted in another district, but had gone to the polls to solicit votes for the Faulkner-Frederick faction. He said O'Bronovich had arrested him because he was boosting a rival faction.

Inspector Charles Faulkner, who was superseded in the Woods Run district by a lieutenant during the voting yesterday, as a result of his political activities, was again in charge of the entire North Side.

State troopers summoned here from Greensburg had returned to their barracks. They had been rushed to guard polls in the Twenty-first and Twenty-fifth wards and Homestead, following election day disturbances.

Ballot boxes of the Third, Sixth, Eighth and Eleventh wards, impounded by order of court, were being delivered today to the custody of the Sheriff.

SHELBY FORCES CARRY FAYETTE

UNIONTOWN, April 27.—Republican voters of Fayette County yesterday gave both a wet and a dry candidate big majorities.

Senator James J. Davis won by more than a 2 to 1 margin over Smedley D. Butler, while Congressman Samuel A. Kendall, who always has voted with the prohibitionists, was an easy victor over John C. Hackney, anti-dry.

The forces of Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby swept the opposition led by William J. Burchinal, Pinchot lieutenant.

With 60 of the 120 districts of Fayette County tabulated, the results of the Davis-Butler competition were, Davis 7,467, Butler 3,369.

The Superior Court vote in 40 precincts was, Parker 3,655, Stadfelt 5,331, James 4,881 and Gawthrop 3,901.

William J. Crow, son of the late United States Senator William E. Crow; J. V. Binns, of Brownsville, and George M. Griffin, of Smock, won the Republican Assembly nominations. Joseph B. Henderson, of Connellsville, incumbent, ran fifth.

Roosevelt was leading Smith nearly 4 to 1 in the Democratic contest with nearly one-half of the precincts reporting.

tabulation was stopped early in the day. The other figures follow:

31ST DISTRICT

102 districts out of 212.

Kelly	14,613
Thompson	5,525

32D DISTRICT

88 districts out of 130.

Muldowney	12,438
Sullivan	7,341
Morin	3,273

with the probabilities favoring the latter.

ROOSEVELT LEADS HERE

Closely matching in interest the Republican statewide fight was the contest in Allegheny County between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and Al Smith, for the Democratic presidential preference. Roosevelt was leading by slightly more than a thousand votes, with half the county reported. In the district delegate fight the Smith group was claiming final returns would give four delegates out of 10 in the county for the 1928 candidate.

Regular Republican candidates for delegate appeared to have won in every district but the Thirty-first, where the field was left open to Charles Howe, of Tarentum, and C. L. Kelly, of McKeesport, put in the fight by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, the only woman candidate for delegate, was running third in the Thirtieth District, the organization electing Hugh McKnight and Joseph C. Trees.

'REGULARS' TRAIL

In legislative contests in the county, regular candidates were trailing in many districts on early returns, but downtown headquarters, managed by William H. Coleman, claimed later reports would pull through some of their candidates who were in jeopardy. It was certain, however, that the Independents had carried at least one seat in the Thirteenth District, and their prospects were bright in the Tenth and Twelfth of breaking through the organization ranks.

Because of the unprecedentedly heavy number of candidates in the county tabulation of the ballots was exceptionally slow, and it was evident that it would be Thursday before the legislative contests are decided in some districts, as well as the struggle for party offices.

LIGHT VOTE

Throughout the county the vote was generally light for state offices, though some legislative and party office contests swelled the total in scattered districts. As has happened in recent primaries, in other states, there was a noticeable swelling in the Democratic totals.

Early returns indicated the regular Republican organization had done its best for Baldwin against Flinn, but that the rank and file of voters in uncontrolled districts, not figuring the prohibition question involved in the fight for Auditor General, had in large numbers voted for Flinn on the independent ticket, after expressing their desire for a change in the dry laws through voting for Davis, pledged to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act.

The only noticeable organization defection occurred in the First Ward, where Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh gave orders to his followers to vote for Flinn rather than Baldwin. Organization leaders said that Walsh had been actuated by the fact that a member of his family has a state job, and he wished to curry favor with Gov. Pinchot supporting Flinn.

Gen. Butler Carries Own Home Precinct

RIVAL CHECKED SMITH ELATED

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—The first decisive check in the march of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt toward the Democratic presidential nomination, as a result of the Pennsylvania and Massachusetts primaries, drew from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith today the remark:

"Well, I guess this will put a chock under the bandwagon.

"This is going to make a difference to a lot of fellows who otherwise might have climbed aboard the bandwagon, thinking there was nothing else to do."

Smith would make no definite prediction as to the effect of the two primaries. His friends, however, were predicting that he would have 200 votes on his side when the convention opens in Chicago.

RICHMOND, Va., April 27.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's comment this morning on the results of yesterday's presidential primaries in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, was:

"I am very well pleased."

Race for Leech Seat In Congress Close

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 27.—(AP.)—A Republican and a Democrat were running a close race today for election to Congress to succeed J. Russell Leech, resigned. The Jobless party candidate was running far behind on the basis of incomplete returns.

Unofficial returns from 80 out of 171 districts gave: Howard Stull (Rep.), 6,268; George E. Wolff (Dem.), 6,360; Joseph Kintner (Jobless), 1,982.

the general and made an individual campaign for him in the closing days of the campaign.

The four-cornered race for the three Superior Court judgeship nominations was close with former Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James leading, followed by Judge William M. Parker in second place, while Judge Robert S. Gawthrop and Judge Joseph Stadtfeld fought it out for the third position.

Returns from 3,999 districts out of 8,181 in the state gave:

James	427,330
Parker	414,293
Gawthrop	344,839
Stadtfeld	317,353

Returns from 3,855 districts for Republican auditor general, gave:

Baldwin	314,809
Flinn	166,504

Both drys and anti-drys found consolation in the senatorial result. The latter pointed to the crushing defeat of Adams, an outright advocate of repeal, and held that Davis' lead was due to the strength of the Martin-Vare organization which supported him, rather than to his advocacy of a referendum and modification.

Davis had been considered a dry until this year. Then, reputedly under pressure from the organization leaders, he sought re-election on a "moist" platform, but based his campaign speeches for the most part on economic issues.

Adams had described himself as "the original wet candidate" and assailed Davis for wavering on the issue. He was charged in some quarters with being a Pinchot "plant" to split Davis' anti-dry vote, but this he vigorously denied.

ATTACKED 'GANG'

Gen. Butler, his hair tousled and his throat hoarse from much speaking, made his principal appeal to members of veterans' organizations with a demand for full payment of the soldiers' bonus. He also vehemently attacked what he called "the Philadelphia gang."

The General was strong in the rural counties, as had been expected, but it was insufficient to overcome the big vote polled by Davis in the cities.

Davis carried Philadelphia, the stronghold of William S. Vare, by more than four to one, and Allegheny County, his home, by nearly three to one.

Davis' apparent victory marked his second outstanding primary triumph. In 1930 he defeated for the nomination Senator Joseph R. Grundy, a powerful political leader.

Whom the Democrats have named to oppose him awaited additional returns. Lewis C. Cassidy held a slight lead over Lawrence H. Rupp.

Gen. Edward Martin said today Davis would win by 400,000 and other candidates backed by the organization would make a clean sweep.

Included in the Smith-Roosevelt vote were complete returns of the 1,566 districts in Philadelphia, where Smith received 18,738 votes and Roosevelt 9,715.

SMITH DEFEATS ROOSEVELT IN BAY STATE

Wins 36 Massachusetts Delegates to Convention; Hoover Loses Delegate

BOSTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Massachusetts' 36 votes in the 1932 Democratic convention today were pledged to Alfred E. Smith.

Repeating his success of 1928, when as the Democratic standard bearer he carried Massachusetts, Smith swept through in yesterday's presidential primary to a decisive victory over Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

A Smith-pledged slate of delegates-at-large, headed by a trio consisting of Gov. Joseph B. Ely and United States Senators David I. Walsh and Marcus A. Coolidge, defeated the Roosevelt slate led by Mayor James M. Curley by a vote of nearly 3 to 1.

PLEDGED TO HOOVER

President Hoover received 33 of the 34 votes which Massachusetts will have in the Republican convention. He was assured of 31, through lack of opposition, before the primary. The one Republican not pledged to Hoover is William F. Whiting, of Holyoke, intimate friend of Calvin Coolidge, and successor to Hoover as Secretary of Commerce in the Coolidge cabinet. He refused to be pledged.

The only contest in which prohibition was involved was won by a pair of anti-prohibitionist Republican candidates pledged to President Hoover in the Ninth District over two prohibition candidates also pledged to the President. The winners were Mayer Sinclair Weeks, of Newton, son of the late Secretary of War John W. Weeks, and State Representative Albert F. Bigelow.

The total vote cast in the primary ran more than 200,000, four times as large as that cast four years ago, but much less than political leaders had anticipated.

BITTER CAMPAIGN

Smith's victory came after one of the most bitterly fought campaigns in the history of Massachusetts. A fued of several years standing between Mayor Curley and the regular Democratic state organization, as personified by Gov. Ely and Frank J. Donahue, state chairman, who named the Smith slate, cast a shadow over the campaign that at times almost hid the real issue—Smith or Roosevelt.

The defeat came as a severe blow to the Roosevelt adherents. Mayor Curley and James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Roosevelt and also a candidate for delegate-at-large, had hoped to get at least a few places on the at-large ticket and several district delegates. Although a newcomer to Massachusetts politics, James Roosevelt ran neck-and-neck with Mayor Curley at the head of the Roosevelt slate.

Senator Walsh received the highest total vote on the Smith slate. Gov. Ely was in second place, and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, third.

Roosevelt Checked, Claims 273 Delegates

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's rush for the Democratic presidential nomination met its first direct check today when primary returns showed Massachusetts had pledged its entire 36 convention votes to Alfred E. Smith.

To what extent that New England defeat may be mitigated by the results coming in slowly from Pennsylvania, with Roosevelt gaining on Smith in the presidential preference vote, only complete returns from the Keystone State can determine.

In Connecticut the preparatory meetings for the May 16 state convention have shown Smith gaining ground.

While Smith adherents hailed the sweeping Massachusetts victory today, political observers concluded that the much talked of "Stop Roosevelt" movement had received its most important stimulus.

With Democratic delegate-choosing over for the week, the 614 chosen to date were allocated today as follows:

Roosevelt instructed, pledged and claimed 273.

Lewis pledged 58.

Smith pledged 36.

Reed pledged 36.

Murray instructed and pledged 23.

In doubt 188.

The 188 doubtful include Pennsylvania's 76. A total of 770 are needed to nominate in the Democratic convention.

Mackey Defeat by Vare Hits Governorship Hope

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—The opposition of William S. Vare appeared today to have been too big an obstacle for former Mayor Harry A. Mackey to surmount in his bid for a seat in the State Assembly at the Republican primary.

With only eight precincts missing, Mackey was 3,196 votes behind Howard M. Long, former United States Commissioner, whom the organization supported. The vote stood 17,435 for Long and 14,239 for Mackey.

The contest attracted statewide attention because it had been generally reported Mackey sought a place in the Legislature as the first step to shooting at the governorship two years hence.

Another feature was the spectacle of Vare opposing the man who managed his successful campaign for the United States Senate in 1926. Vare subsequently was denied his seat because of charges of excessive expenditures in his primary campaign.

Prepare Cemetery For Potato Field

DOVER, O., April 27.—(INS.)—To prepare a seven-acre field on the Municipal Cemetery farm for planting of charity potatoes, Council authorized service director Carl Krantz to pay a farmer 80 cents an hour for a team and equipment. Jobless will be credited at the rate of 30 cents an hour on charity accounts for cultivating the crop.

Bank Bandits Get Only $2.50 in Loot

STILWELL, Kan., April 27.—(INS.)—Two dollars and fifty cents was the total "loot" obtained by bandits who broke into the Stilwell State Bank after cutting all telephone wires in the town. The bandits burned a hole through a vault door, but failed to penetrate an inner door. The $2.50 was stolen from an unlocked desk drawer.

Auto Kills Voter As He Leaves Polls

James B. Nash, 65, of 530 Grandview avenue, died yesterday a short time after being struck by an automobile at Capitol and West Liberty avenues. He had left the polls shortly before the accident. The driver, Dr. Vincent L. Maieno, of 302 North Highland avenue, posted bond at the Coroner's office.

N. Y. Opens Trade School for Aged

NEW YORK, April 27.—(INS.)—Trade schools for men and women of 80 and 90 years who want to earn their living by carpentering, basket weaving, shawl making or similar gainful pursuits may be common in the future, Dr. Lillien J. Martin, octogenarian psychologist, foreshadowed such a development by advocating the aged should be taught or teach themselves how to be self-supporting.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION

PRICES ARE LOWER NOW THAN EVER BEFORE

INVEST IN AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

● There are luxuries that one can do without. But Electric Refrigeration is a necessity . . . vitally important to the modern household.

It actually costs less to own a good Electric Refrigerator than it does to do without one. This is fact . . . not fiction.

An Electric Refrigerator is actually economical to operate! That's saving number one. Food spoilage is practically unknown! That's saving number two. And because foods stay fresh much longer in an Electric Refrigerator, you may buy in quantities on bargain days! Saving number three.

Most everybody knows about these things. That's why more Electric Refrigerators are being purchased today than ever before.

It's not only smart to own an Electric Refrigerator, but it's also smart to practice thrift and sound economy . . . the actual savings in food costs possible with Electric Refrigeration. You can't afford to be without one.

Call on the Electrical Dealer nearest you today and see the newest models of the various manufacturers. A small payment puts any one of them in your home.

REED TO FIGHT FOR CUSTOMS JOBS HERE

Senator Opposes Threatened Abolishment of Office In Economy Campaign

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—Six jobs, including that of collector, in the Pittsburgh district customs office won't be discontinued if Senator Reed can do anything about it.

Senator Reed, informed yesterday that F. X. A. Eble, Commissioner of Customs, had decided the Pittsburgh district office would be abandoned if the Customs Bureau appropriations were cut 10 per cent, said:

"I'm going to do everything I can to save those jobs."

Senator Reed voted against the McKellar resolution which ordered the 10 per cent cut in Senate appropriations above those cuts already made by the economy-minded House.

Eble said the list of customs districts and ports to be abandoned, in event the Senate cut is final, had been decided upon.

Those positions which the bureau proposes to abolish, with salaries, are:

Collector, $5,400; deputy collector, $2,700; disbursing clerk, $2,200; clerk, $2,500; appraiser, $4,600; clerk, $1,700.

With Pittsburgh remaining a port, Eble said, the average importer would not be affected by the change. Some customs brokers would, however, likely lose their work or be forced to move to Philadelphia.

Parents Defy Ban On Home Schooling

VINELAND, N. J., April 27.—(AP)—An "ultimatum" of the Board of Education to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Smart expires today, but no indication has come from the Smart farm that they intend to abandon their intention of educating their four children at home.

Following a conference last week which the Smarts failed to attend, authorities gave them five days to register in a public school three of their children, who are of school age.

Ex-Speaker Spangler Loses in York Vote

YORK, Pa., April 27.—(AP)—Defeat of Representative Robert S. Spangler, York, former Speaker of the State House of Representatives and an anti-Pinchot candidate for another term in the Legislature, was revealed today on returns from 31 of the city's 42 districts.

Spangler was defeated by Horace G. Ports, York, who polled 2 474 votes to 1 690 for Spangler and 406 for Francis B. Martin. Political observers attributed Spangler's defeat to his opposition to Gov. Pinchot in the recent special session of the Legislature, and to his campaign attacks on Secretary of Highways Samuel S. Lewis, local Republican leader.

Auto Show Manager Dies in England

Word has been received here of the death in Bristol, England, of Samuel A. Miles, 69, veteran manager of the national automobile shows in New York and Chicago. Mr. Miles, a prominent figure in the automobile world, died Monday while on a trip that included his boyhood home in Wales.

Light Failure Stirs Courthouse Guard

Apprehension reigned in the Courthouse when lights throughout the building went out in the midst of last night's election activities.

State troopers in the office of the Registration Commission and watchmen, flashlights in hand, rushed into the corridors to investigate. Calls to the Duquesne Light Company brought an emergency man who explained the darkness was caused by the blowing out of a fuse in the Grant street sub-station.

Horne's Quarterly Clearance

It will pay you to put on your glasses, if necessary, to read the smaller-than-usual type which we have had to use to enumerate these Quarterly Clearance offerings from all over the store! And even then, we have only been able to list a part of them. You will find them intensely interesting and opportune, especially if you are seeking unusual savings. Because of the Clearance character of the offerings, we will not be able to fill mail or telephone orders.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(During illness of Mr. Winchell this column is being conducted by Paul Yawitz.)

The Little Red Book

Lillian Bond, the screemie queen, was secretly dissolved from her London ½ via the Chi route several months ago . . . Viola Brothers Shore became a gran-mammy last wk . . . Inspired by the Eye-Gazing of Cupid Ainsworth, Wm. Haines' vaud. lead, Chrisolm (Soc. Reg.) Beach has decided on a business career . . . The final settlement of the Woolworth will this wk raised the body-guarded Barbara Hutton's total assets to $51,000,000 . . . The detective who cleared the Glemby robbery by passing as "Meyer Rothstein, the Seattle fence," may find NYC sued by a jeweler who can prove he is the only man in town by that name . . . Linda Watkins and Gabe Hess are rehearsing "Clap Hands!" . . . The sensation of the season was the Baltimore debs' leapyr party in which the boys were sent flowers, called for in cars and asked for dances by a stag line . . . With Eliz. Thom and Chesley Requard, head debutantalizers, making the trip all the way to Princeton to escort Carroll Van Ness and Bob Harrison . . . I'll take vanilla!

Broadway . . . Paradox Parish . . . where the shadows remain long after the lights are broken.

The Fred (prexy of Life) Francises who Struck A Minor Key have decided to forget it with another European honeymoon . . . France and Russia are the only nations who are training all non-combatants in the use of gas-masks . . . Hilda Ferguson, one of Ziggy's toasted beauties, is selling millinery in a W. 57th St. shop. . . . And Lillian Dixon, the Scandoll of 2 seasons ago, is leading Minsky's burlesque . . . Geo. Lauder became bored with the Howard Hughes yotting party and returned to the Gland Canyon . . . Count de Miere y del Palmar, whose ma is visiting ex-King Alfonso, will bring her to NY to meet Barbara Blair, the Geo. White lovely, before the knot is tied . . . The Julius (Journ. of Com.) Cohens will be heired.

Broadway . . . where they change the lock the day before they give you the key to the city.

Carla Gutohrhlein (the left G Sister) is Headed for the Altar with an English barrister . . . Jane Cotter, sis of Mrs. Reid Albee, and Charles Bowers, of the travel bureaux, are Justlikethis . . . Bebe Daniels carries 76 snapshots of her baby . . . And Ben Lyon goes her a doz. better . . . The Pierre Bultinks (she was the former Baroness Schnehen) are making baby clothes . . . Nancy Carroll and her 6-yr.-old Patricia are both in the same pro. tip-tap-toe class at Ned Wayburn's . . . Norma Talmadge says no matter what happens she will never marry Geo. -:- Plays and Players -:-

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Now is the time when the Yiddish players leave New York on their annual tours to cities, such as Pittsburgh, where there is an audience for at least one night's performance. They have developed many fine artists, some of whom make their way to the English stage. The first of these touring companies to come this spring will be that of Misha and Lucy German, who will be seen in the Nixon next Wednesday night in "Such Is Life." In the company will be a popular Jewish comedian, Menashe Skulnik. Hirsh's, 1623 Center avenue, and Schiff Brothers, 1304 Fifth avenue, have the tickets.

Manager Harry Brown of the Nixon came in a little breathlessly yesterday, and with good reason, too, perhaps. He is going to have a "supplementary season," which is to say that the Civic Light Opera Company, Milton Aborn, managing director, will give a week of Gilbert & Sullivan in the Nixon the week of May 16. The works will be "Trial By Jury," "Pirates of Penzance," "Pinafore" and "The Mikado." Fay Templeton and Herbert Waterous will be prominent members of the company.

The next attraction in the Alvin will be the Professional Players' belated attraction, "Hay Fever," the postponed date of which is May 9. Constance Collier will be seen in the featured feminine role, as originally scheduled.

Remember Flush? Katharine Cornell's spaniel in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," that was investigated by the Humane Society here because some theater patron complained he was "doped"? Well, Flush was made an honorary member of the Michigan Humane Society, with medal 'n' everything, when the company was in Detroit, writes Ray Henderson, Miss Cornell's representative in public relations. Miss Cornell, incidentally, has decided to extend her tour to the Pacific Coast. She will open in Los Angeles May 31 and will visit San Francisco later.

Boston, first road stop, now is seeing "Mourning Becomes Electra," presented by the original New York cast. . . Eva LeGallienne is reported as being of a mind to revive "Liliom" when she reopens her repertory theater in New York, in the fall, with Joseph Schildkraut in the title role he originated when Miss LeGallienne starred in the play. . . Preston (Strictly Dishonorable") Sturges has a title, "Unfaithfully Yours," upon which he threatens to append a play. . . Mae Marsh, old-time star of silent films, who came back strongly in "Over the Hill," will have her second talkie role in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm". . . "The Roadhouse Murder" will not be solved until Roscoe Ates does a lots of stuttering in it.

Crusoe Gets Penthouse In Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.

It took 40 polynesians to fashion and equip the Robinson Crusoe penthouse that Douglas Fairbanks uses in his picture.

In dispatches just received from Papeete, Doug tells of scouring all the nearby islands to find the best native artisans.

"What they can't make out of a cocoanut and a piece of bamboo," he says, "isn't to be found in a mail order catalog."

Douglas Fairbanks

The Fairbanks' Crusoe is supposed to fashion all the implements himself. He'll use a knife made out of bamboo, a machette out of ironwood, a saw out of shells and sawfish and dozens of other ingenious inventions. His rope will be the liana vine, and the hot and cold water in his penthouse will flow through bamboo pipes. He'll even have homemade golf clubs.

All these things have been successfully contrived by the 40 Polynesians, assisted by Doug's own technical crew.

The star's present schedule brings him into San Francisco May 7 on the Makura. Mary will be on the dock to meet him and the two of them will return to Hollywood.

DAILY GOSSIP

Greta Garbo hasn't the slightest intention of marrying anyone, despite that cable story. Her business manager, Harry Eddington, denies it. The young man mentioned, by the way, got a big splash in the fan magazines some time ago. Also in that Rilla Palmborg "Private Life" of Greta, which so displeased the Swedish star . . . Bert Wheeler was dancing at Stark's Bohemian Cafe with a pretty redhead named Diana Borge. (Not so sure about that last name). Anyway, they see plenty of each other these days . . . Mae Clarke is home from the hospital now, but it will be a month or six weeks before she can do any work . . . Mary Nolan is headed for Portland to do some vaudeville . . . Everything's happy at the Keaton menage—at least Buster gave Natalie a new limousine. She came out on the front porch and found it tied up in tissue paper . . . Saw Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque dining at Al Levy's Tavern . . . Laura La Plant will replace Lillian Bond, when Edward Everett Horton takes "Springtime for Henry" to San Francisco . . . The stars and principals of Earl Carroll's Vanities will be honored guests at the Biltmore Garden Room next Tuesday and Friday evenings. Herb Williams will be master of ceremonies and Vivian Fay, Betty Veronica, Harry Stockwell, Chaz Chase, John Hale and Clarence Stroud will entertain.

Money Man

Wallace Beery moves through the corridors and rooms of "Grand Hotel," current in the Aldine, as Herr Preysing, the financier.

Notes About Stage and Screen

The talk screen version of "The Miracle Man" will come to the Penn screen Friday. The cast will include Boris Karloff, Sylvia Sidney, Chester Morris and Irving Pichel. The stage will feature Jimmy Savo, recent comedy star of Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

The picture opening Friday in the Stanley will be "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," featuring Joan Blondell, Madge Evans, Ina Claire, Lowell Sherman and David Manners. On the stage will be Paul Whiteman and his band.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

Elissa Landi comes to the Fulton screen tomorrow in "The Devil's Lottery." Victor McLaglen heads the supporting cast.

"She Wanted a Millionaire," featuring John Bennett and Spencer Tracy, opens today in the Enright.

Beginning today the Sheridan Square presents Walter Huston in the film, "The Beast of the City."

CORTEZ IN FILM

"Symphony of Six Million," with Ricardo Cortez and Irene Dunne, comes to the Warner screen Friday.

"Carnival Boat," with Bill Boyd, Hobart Bosworth, Ginger Rogers and Fred Kohler, will open in the Davis Friday. It is a comedy drama of the logging camps.

SATURDAY EVENTS

D. W. Griffith's latest picture, "The Struggle," with Hal Skelly and Zita Johann, will come Saturday to the Harris.

The Academy, it is announced, will close its current burlesque season with the final performance Saturday of "The Gangs All Here," featuring Marion (Kiki) Roberts.

Falls Dead Watching Fire Fatal to Three

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 27.—(AP.)—Three persons were burned to death and another fell dead today when fire swept through seven frame houses in the tenement district.

The dead are Mrs. James Bentley, 30, and her two children, Edith, 7, and Lulu, 9. Fred Buckley, 75, an occupant of one of the destroyed houses, fell dead while watching the fire.

Bogus 'Phone Men Rob Woman of $100

Two men representing themselves as telephone company workers, according to a report to police, entered the home of Mrs. Carrie Adams, 707 Anaheim street, and robbed her of $100. Mrs. Adams told police one of the men carried a bag of tools and the other, after gaining entrance to her home, drew a pistol from his pocket, threatening her.

Romance!

Bill Boyd and Ginger Rogers figure in the closeups in "Carnival Boat," a romantic drama of the lumber camps, opening Friday in the Davis.

Allied Boards Spur Fair Rate Fight

The fight for fair rates and the results of the political campaign are to be discussed at a meeting of the Allied Boards of Trade at 7 o'clock tonight at the Congress of Women's Clubs. Directors of the Allied Boards will meet at 5 p. m., and dinner will be served at 6 p. m.

IV. Quartet for Piano and Strings, Op. 7.....A. DeCastillon

Not nearly enough members of the Tuesday Musical Club turned out yesterday afternoon to hear the spring concert of the string ensemble. Ruth Thoburn Knox has been director for several years, an uphill job, which should be deeply appreciated. She finds rarely beautiful music for these occasions and frequently must call in the aid of the Saudek Ensemble, as at this concert, for wind instruments; then to blend these strangers into a fine amalgam is Mrs. Knox's task.

Mr. Lissfelt

The tone of this little group is better than its attack. It was particularly successful at the outset with the delightful music of Purcell and in the miniature of Massenet. The quartet of DeCastillon unfortunately gave Helen Roessing too small a part for piano, for her playing added much to the sweep of this music.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ADD TO YOUR list of gambling stories the one that Mr. Lou Holtz forwards for your amusement. It seems that Frank and Eddie, two gamblers of excellent reputation, found themselves in Miami several seasons back in a rather precarious position. They had been informed that a certain horse couldn't lose a certain race. They had wagered everything on the information. The information might have been good, but the horse didn't know it. Curtain.

Small wonder, then, that Frank and Eddie sat in their hotel room several hours later and talked gloomily about the situation.

"We've got to get some cash," muttered Frank, "but where the devil is it coming from? We borrowed all we could and stuck it on that dog today, so where are we going to turn off now? The hotel bill is due in the morning, and we haven't even got the dough for that. What's to be done?"

His partner sighed.

"I'm very much afraid, my boy," he returned, "that we will have to turn to a little trickery. I hate to go in for this petty stuff, but I don't see what else we can do. We'll have to run into one of the gambling houses and claim a few bets."

Claiming a bet, as you doubtless know, is simple and productive—if it works. You simply stand around a crowded roulette table and, when the proper moment presents itself, you claim to have made a winning wager. The rightful winner is generally someone who has been betting on various spots—so that he's none too sure himself. And if you look convincingly enough the chips become your property.

Frank nodded.

"All right, kid," he asserted. "Things are getting pretty tough when two such high class men as we have to go for a gag like that. But that's life, Eddie. And horses will be horses." . . .

Some 30 minutes later both gamblers were standing in front of a roulette layout in one of the swankiest wagering spots in all Florida. They watched the play for a while, and Eddie wandered around to the other side of the table. Neither man had more than $2 in his pocket.

A stout gentleman with a florid complexion seemed to harbor a desire to lose as much as possible in a very short time. He was playing four or five numbers at the same time, putting more dough on the notion that one of the first 12 numbers would turn up and wagering heavily that the red would appear more often than the black. Eddie slipped in beside him and awaited his opportunity.

The wheel was turned. The little ball came to rest. Eddie's hand shot out. And it came to rest on the $100 in chips that had been bet on the red by the florid gentleman.

"I finally cashed a bet," murmured Eddie pleasantly. "Nice evening, isn't it?"

The real winner of the bet seemed somewhat perplexed.

"I think you made a little mistake, sir," he asserted. "That happens to be my $100 wager. Those were my chips."

If you have a longing for the perfect picture of injured innocence, you should have seen Eddie's pan at that moment. His eyes opened wide and complete astonishment was written all over his map.

"I can assure you, mister," he lied beautifully, "that you are the one who is mistaken. You've been making so many bets that you are undoubtedly mixed up. This is my $100."

The other man's face turned so red that you could have fried an egg on his chin.

"Don't tell me, sir," he cried excitedly, "that I don't know what I'm doing. I never forget a bet—and I know that money is mine."

At this point, the croupier stepped in.

"Just a minute, gentlemen," he said. "All hands off the table please. Leave your chips exactly as they are. No bets will be paid until these gentlemen reach a decision."

"There's no decision," said the real winner. "That's my $100, and there's nothing else to it."

Eddie was just as emphatic.

"The sum involved is hardly worth bothering about," he chirped. "But I refuse to let anyone get away with this on me. I demand my money."

The croupier was extremely calm.

"Perhaps, gentlemen," he murmured smoothly, "we can leave it to one of the other players to decide." He looked at the various customers. "May I ask if anyone of you saw either of these gentlemen take that $100 bet?"

During all this action, Eddie's partner had been standing quietly across the table. Now he stepped forward.

"I don't know anything about that $100," he cried. "But if anybody touches the $100 that I just won over here, I'll break his neck!" . . .

AMONG the best of the recent racketeer stunts is the one pulled by a small betting commissioner who works in the vicinity of Madison Square Garden. On a recent fight he accepted a bet with a certain fight manager, laying odds of $3,500 to $500 that the manager's fighter would not win by a knockout.

The commissioner was given the $500 to place, but the money began to burn a hole in his pocket. Why not hold the $500 himself, he felt, and win that much money without a risk? It looked like a cinch bet. He fiinally decided to take a chance.

As the hour for the fight approached, however, he grew extremely nervous. After pondering for a while finally strike a brilliant idea. He sidled over to a policeman friend of his and had himself pinched on some minor charge. Until the fight was over he sat in the station house. When the decision was announced he left.

As it happens, he won the money. If he had lost, however, he had a perfect excuse. He couldn't get the bet down because he was in jail! . . .

THE PARTY, according to Bob L., was taking place in a room in one of the large hotels. The host, hearing some one at the door, opened it. There stood a drunk, swaying happily from side to side. He looked at the host with bleary eyes.

"Pardon me," he hiccoughed. "Guessh I mus' have the wrong room. Sorry."

He rolled away, and the host closed the door. About an hour later the host again heard some one fumbling with the lock. He threw open the portal and saw the same drunk.

"Oh," murmured the drunk, "scuse me. Thish is the second time we meet. 'Scuse me, sir."

Once again the drunk staggered off. Another hour passed and the party was just breaking up when the host again heard some one outside the room. Thoroughly peeved, he ran to the door and flung it open. And there was the familiar stew.

"Shay, what is thish?" he yodeled. "Have you got every room in thish hotel?" . . .

Ancient Temple Discovered in Smyrna Ashes

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 27. —(AP.)—German archeologists, looking for the ancient Greek theater at Smyrna, have excavated an antique temple with 11 domes and many marble columns, buried deep in the ashes of volcanic eruptions.

They called specialists from Germany to identify the edifice. The German Prof. Weygant has offered to finance extensive excavations at Smyrna, one of the greatest of the ancient cities of Asia Minor.

In spite of the occasional chilly showers of early spring, women golf lovers already may be seen on the greens of nearby country clubs.

Golfers at Longue Vue Country Club, with its setting of rolling green hills and with its approach of exquisite yellow-green forsythia hedge, opened their season yesterday. They'll play each Tuesday morning, beginning with a breakfast.

Katherine MacCloskey is golf chairman for this year, with Rosemary Casey, Mrs. Hugh G. Nevin, Helen Blackmore and Edna Love on her committee.

Among the first to start over the course yesterday was Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas, golf chairman a year ago. She wore a cinnamon brown wool sports dress with green buttons as the only accent, and a brown felt and straw hat. Playing with her was Mrs. George Breck, wearing a beige wool skirt and a beige and brown knitted sweater with a crocheted turban to match.

Start Golfing

Rosemary Casey chose a yellow flannel flared skirt, a white sweater and white crocheted hat, to be popular again this year with sportswomen.

Katherine McCloskey chose a dark red knitted suit. Other early morning players were Mrs. Hugh Nevin, Edna Love and Helen Blackmore.

Afterward the club will go to Mrs. H. E. Carmack's home in Rebecca street for a book review of Bess Streeter Aldrich's "A Lantern in Her Hand," which Mrs. R. M. Craig will give.

Mrs. Leo L. Half Honored at Meeting

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The only business which came up yesterday at the president's day meeting of Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, was the report of the nominating committee by its chairman, Mrs. Karl J. Kaufmann. It presented Mrs. Leo L. Half for reelection as president, together with these other candidates: Vice presidents, Mrs. Charles B. Buerger, Mrs. Karl J. Kaufmann, Mrs. Charles L. Reizenstein and Mrs. Leo Schonfield; recording secretary, Mrs. Morris Balter; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edgar L. Hirsh; financial secretary, Mrs. Alexander Silverman; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Stewart; auditor, Mrs. Harold Goldstein; directors, Mrs. David Alter, Mrs. Lee Rosenthal, Mrs. Abe Blumenthal, Mrs. Carl Bachrach, Mrs. I. H. Levin and Mrs. Eugene Herzog.

The afternoon meeting honoring Mrs. Half was preceded by a luncheon given by the board and served according to the ancient Passover custom. The auditorium of the Y. M. and W. H. A. was beautifully decorated for the afternoon session, lovely rugs covering the temporary rostrum, the Amelia Zugsmith vases being filled with long-stemmed snapdragon, the gift of the board in Mrs. Half's honor, while the four long, beautifully laid tables were centered with mounds of spring flowers and yellow tapers.

Mrs. Buerger, first vice president, presided, read the many messages of felicitation to the honor guest and presented her.

The program was presented by Esther Stoll, dramatic soprano, with Earl Mitchell at the piano. Miss Stoll, who is a member of the German Grand Opera Company, has a powerful voice of wide range that is best in its more quiet passages. She sang a varied program in German, Italian and English.

KOTEX prices go down

KOTEX reduces prices. Now, women who want the best, the most comfort-giving sanitary protection, can easily afford it. And they are assured of the utmost protection to health . . . when they choose Kotex.

No question mark hovers over Kotex. It is safe. It is soft. It is comfort giving. It offers true security.

Kotex, you know, is cut, folded, even packed by machine. Made of tested materials. In air-washed rooms. Inspected 76 times during the course of manufacture.

The fact that hospitals used 24,000,000 Kotex pads last year is reason enough for selecting Kotex.

Kotex stays soft, even after use; it is highly absorbent; shaped skillfully to fit; disposable.

When buying it wrapped, make sure you get genuine Kotex.

Genuine Kotex Sanitary Napkins now cost less

It's not a FRIGIDAIRE
Unless it's a FRIGIDAIRE

Way back in 1916—that's when Frigidaire was born. And so great, so great was the baby's popularity that soon people began calling all ice-less refrigerators Frigidaire. The Frigidaire makers think this is all wrong. They want you to demand the genuine—to get a FRIGIDAIRE when you ask for one. And they think Kaufmann's is a swell place to get it, too. In fact they've authorized us to say just that. Kaufmann's adds its own welcome—and urges your visit before the hot weather.

About 1916, the year of Frigidaire's nativity, father had to crank the freezer for the Sunday cream.

About 1916, when Frigidaire first saw daylight, 'twas a major tragedy when you forgot to put out the sign, "50 Pounds To-day."

About 1916, when Frigidaire was born, the problem was: "Shall we have cold drinks tonight, or save the ice to keep the cream (and our dispositions) sweet."

You Get All This in the Moraine Model for as little as 149.50
COMPLETELY INSTALLED

The Moraine model is a genuine Frigidaire, with Frigidaire's outstanding advantages . . . surplus power resulting from twin cylinder compressor, which insures an even temperature at all times. The Frigidaire Cold Control permits 6 freezing speeds. The porcelain interior is acid-resisting and stainless; shelves are non-stoop. And the 5-year guaranteed Frigidaire is priced at the lowest in Frigidaire history!

SEVENTH FLOOR

Points of Excellence Emphasized by the Makers of FRIGIDAIRE

1. Even the bottom shelf can be reached without stooping. And what an important point that is! For it means that you can use all of the shelf space.

2. The high-speed freezing unit maintains temperatures that are always below freezing—always ready to freeze ice or deserts.

3. The "Cold Control" sends freezing compartment temperatures down toward zero—whenever you wish—enables you to shorten freezing time at will.

4. Super Power keeps food fresh regardless of weather. And the power unit is completely concealed in the bottom of the cabinet.

5. The simple Frigidaire mechanism operates quietly. It starts quietly—runs quietly—stops quietly. And it stays quiet.

6. Just a few pennies a day cover the cost of operating Frigidaire. In fact you will scarcely notice the difference it makes in your electric bills.

7. The interior is acid-resisting porcelain—where stains are most likely to occur. The inside of Frigidaire can be kept as spotlessly clean as a china dish.

8. The smooth flowing lines of the easy-to-look-at and useful flat top are in perfect harmony with the trim appearance of the entire cabinet.

9. Frigidaire is a product of General Motors—with the benefits of its purchasing power, quantity production and rigid inspection.

10. Frigidaire is sold with a guarantee backed by Frigidaire, General Motors and Kaufmann's.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Girls Should Not Meet Boys Through a 'Pick-Up'

How about boy "pick-ups?" Are they ever safe?

Can a nice girl find good, reliable friends that way? Rose wants to know.

No, Rose isn't thinking of spearing a ride in some cruising limousine or snappy roadster; and she doesn't go in for flirting with the drug store cowboys on the corner. But—yes, you guessed it. There's an awfully nice boy—

But here's the story, in her own words:

"Dear Sally—

"I wish you would help me a little. Something funny has happened lately, and I don't know just what to make of it, or quite what to do.

"I am a girl 20 years old, and today, while I was waiting for the street car on my accustomed corner a very attractive young man came up to me, handed me a folded note and then disappeared. I don't remember ever seeing him before, and I am at a loss to know just what to do.

"I feel that it might be interesting to know him. He looked decent. He was well groomed and clean, and he looked intelligent. Still, I have my doubts about the wisdom of meeting anyone that way. Here is what the note said:

"'You will likely think I am just a nut, but the truth is that I have seen you many times on this corner during the last few months, and I have always wished I could walk up and say "Hello," but I haven't had the nerve. But I would like to know you.

GIRL IS DOUBTFUL

"'I don't seem to know anyone who knows you, so it makes it difficult. I've thought about it a good deal; so here is a note, anyway. I don't mean to be fresh, but when one person sees another he thinks is very, very nice, surely there is no harm in at least trying to be friends—unless the other person doesn't see things in the same light. So I've decided to try it.

"'I suppose that after this you will call a cop, or rush hurriedly by when you see me. But there is nothing like trying.'

"What do you think of it all? Do you think it would be all right to let him speak to me and see what he is like? Or would I be getting into trouble if I did? He looks all right, but I don't know. I feel a little—well, doubtful. "ROSE."

And you may well feel doubtful, Rose.

Of course he may be just a lonesome kid, who actually is as decent as he looks. And he might make a safe, decent friend. Such things have happened.

MAY BE A BLIND

At first glance you would think that if he really were a "fresh guy" on the make, he would have walked up, given you the glad eye and said "Hello, Baby." But—

On the other hand, his seeming shyness and reluctance to speak may be just a blind for something slimy and sinister.

Many a human snake has put on a mask of decency and gentility in order to get some girl into his clutches, so he could work his vicious purposes after he had gained her confidence, because if he showed his real character the good girl wouldn't fall for his "line," while if he pretended to be just a decent kid who was lonesome and out for a little innocent friendship, she would be off her guard until it was too late.

So I wouldn't go in for making friends that way, youngster. Strangers may be just as fine as anyone you know; but it's only when someone you know introduces them that you have a little guarantee of their character. You're not taking the same chances then that you take if you pick 'em up. That's why introductions were invented, and why they're good yet—even in this year of 1932.

Fay King Condemns the Wily Adventuress Who Breaks Up Homes

By FAY KING

I will say this in favor of the out-and-out gold digger, she is a paragon of virtue compared to the girl who under the protective guise of respectability breaks up a home.

The man who plays around with a gold-digger who is only out for a good time and what she can get, has no trouble in getting rid of her. All he has to do is tell her he is broke.

But the man who is willing to philander, but likes a look of respectability about it and takes up with a girl who lives at home, and who perhaps holds a reliable position, often finds that the affair ends in threats and demands that he divorce his wife, leave his children and marry this girl.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Don't Reduce Too Fast If You Want Good Health

Dr. Copeland

Many of my readers write asking for a quick and safe method of reducing. I can picture their disappointment when they read my answer. There is no quick and safe method. A great deal of physical harm has resulted from careless and unscientific methods of reducing.

A great number of individuals follow a rigid and strenuous reducing diet. They omit important and necessary foods from their daily menu, but continue to perform the usual amount of work each day. Sudden and rapid loss in weight is their goal, but the loss of poundage may be followed by poor health.

Warnings have been given against this dangerous fad and practice, but I am sorry to say that in spite of these warnings, many persons continue to follow a dangerous reducing diet. Please remember that rapid loss of weight is only temporary. Severe dieting with sudden and marked loss of weight can do more harm to the body than overweight can ever possibly do.

I do not mean that a stout person should not reduce. Overweight is a problem which deserves serious consideration. A person who is overweight is susceptible to certain diseases. For example, a recent survey made in the United States shows diabetes to be very common in obese individuals, while rarely found in thin persons.

Excess weight throws an extra burden on the heart, digestive organs, liver and kidneys. Heart disease, Bright's disease, gout, gall stones and hardening of the arteries are a few of the major complications of overweight.

Obesity is usually the result of excessive eating. When this is controlled over a period of time, loss in weight results. Many stout people attempt this simple and safe method of dieting, but quickly become discouraged. They eat less food, but do not notice any immediate loss of weight. They resort to dangerous forms of reducing, or give up in despair.

Spectacular results should not be expected. In many cases there is no actual change in weight for at least two weeks. After the two-week period the loss in weight is slow but sure.

If you really want to reduce, you can. Do not overeat, and never eat between meals or before retiring. A good rule is to cut down to about two-third the amount of food you generally eat. This should include all foods, and not one particular food. If you are not hungry, do not eat.

Exercise is important. Most stout people do not exercise. In addition to dieting, I would strongly recommend simple exercise, such as walking two or three miles every day. Avoid strenuous and fatiguing exercise, which is as harmful and dangerous as rapid reducing.

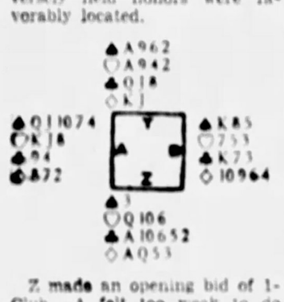
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

An Unexpected Result

The position of adversely held cards always is an important factor, often making a difference of several tricks to the players. The hand below won several tricks more than either declarer or dummy dared bid, and wholly because holdings fitted and adversely held honors were favorably located.



Z made an opening bid of 1-Club. A felt too weak to do anything except pass. Y could have supported his partner's declaration, but there appeared much greater game chances at no-trumps than at a minor make, so Y shifted into 2-No-Trumps, hoping that his partner might be able to bid a major suit. On account of his very weak spades Z bid 3-Diamonds. When Y shifted to 3-No Trumps, Z passed.

No lead could have saved game. B did not dare open either major suit. His only four-card suit was diamonds, which had been bid secondarily by Z, and B decided to open that suit. He led the 4, dummy played the 8, A the 7, and Y's J won the trick. The declarer immediately cleared his hand of the suit by playing his K. Next Y led the Q of clubs. It appeared useless for B to decline to cover, and he put up his K, the trick won by dummy's Ace.

Declarer's J won the return lead, and the fifth trick was taken by Z's 10. A had to discard upon this last trick; he showed his spade strength by discarding the 7 of spades. On the sixth trick, still leading winning clubs from dummy the declarer discarded his lowest heart; A completed his echo in spades by dropping the 4 of that suit; B discarded his 8 of spades. Dummy's last club was led. A had to let go his last diamond; Y discarded his lowest spade; B discarded his lowest heart.

The eighth and ninth tricks were won by dummy's two top diamonds, forcing two of the three other players to discard twice. B followed suit in diamonds. A let go of his 8 of hearts and his 10 of spades. Y discarded the 6 and 9 of spades, baring his Ace.

By this time Y could count just what A and B must hold. It was quite plain that B originally held 3 spades, 3 hearts, 3 clubs and 4 diamonds. At the end of the ninth trick, B held just two spades and two hearts. Knowing what the other three players held at first, A must have had 5 spades, of which he had discarded three; he had held 2 hearts, and one had been discarded, so that he now had 2 hearts and 2 spades. Z held 1 spade and 3 hearts, and so did Y. All the declarer had to do was to lead a low heart from dummy, put up his ace, and lead back the suit, letting A's K win the eleventh trick, but leaving Y in possession of the ace of spades, and one good heart with which he could win the last two tricks.

The declarer had bid only 3-no trumps, and no sane player could safely have bid the small slam that he made. These over-tricks help compensate for the other side of the story, where a trick or two down results from unfavorable card distributions and dispositions.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. How do you introduce three women to one man?

2. Is it necessary to shake hands with both the hostess and the guests? Or is handshaking improper? M.

1. We don't introduce women to men, dear friend. We introduce men to women. And when we are introducing three women we might say, "Mrs. Worthington, may I present Mr. Williams? . . . and Mrs. Jenson, Mr. Williams . . . and Miss Montgomery, Mr. Williams?"

2. Handshaking is never "improper" . . . some people like to shake hands often and with practically everyone they meet, and some people don't. But always a hostess and a host shake hands with guests.

When you arrive at a party, and have shaken hands with the hostess and the host, you will probably shake hands with the guests who are special friends of yours, and with acquaintances if you wish to. If you are a woman, you will probably not shake hands when a man is introduced to you, but you may, of course if you wish to. And you may or may not, as you wish, shake hands with other women when you are introduced. If you are a man, you will shake hands with the men who are introduced to you, and when you are introduced to a woman, you will wait for the woman to offer her hand for a handshake.

Expression of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct, after being entertained at a dinner or bridge party, to call either in person or on the telephone, or, if at a distance, to write a note of thanks?

I have always telephoned to my hostess to tell her again that I enjoyed myself. My friend says that it is not correct, that this is "old fashioned," and that this form is not observed by the younger people of good breeding, that one's thanks at the door when leaving are sufficient.

What do you think?

N. G. H.

Kindness, graciousness, expressions of appreciation, are never out of fashion with people of breeding, young or old, here or there, now and then. Such gracious qualities will be, "Till the sun grows cold and the stars are old," and there will always be pleasant people who will give forth these qualities as sweetly and unconsciously as flowers give forth fragrance.

There will always be hostesses who are hospitable and who will love our telling them that we enjoy their hospitality and their kindness to us, and there will always be guests who will be so pleasant and thoughtful and kind in their reactions that they will want to assure their hostesses of their appreciation. The opposition of all this is not being new-fashioned or "modern" . . . it's just being thoughtless and not-deeply considerate.

Prince George to Go On Air; Helen Wills Moody WCAE Star Tonight

PRINCE GEORGE, the third member of the English royal family to feature an international broadcast this year, will be heard here through WJAS when he speaks at the annual dinner of the Royal Academy in London at 3:40 Saturday afternoon.

King George V has been heard three times by American listeners and the Prince of Wales once when he spoke last Saturday at the Shakespeare memorial services at Stratford-on-Avon. The Prince of Wales will be heard for the second time May 16 when he speaks at the unveiling of a huge war memorial at Thiepval, France, which bears the names of more than 76,000 British soldiers. President Doumer of France also will be heard.

Program Pointers

HELEN WILLS MOODY, noted woman tennis star, making one of her rare microphone appearances tonight when she is interviewed by Grantland Rice on WCAE at 10, reveals her estimate of the abilities of all of the leading women lawn satellites and discusses the coming season as related to the sport. James Melton, tenor, and Gustave Haenschen's Orchestra present the musical portion of the program. Helena Rubinstein, the well-known beauty specialist, reveals a few of the secrets of her craft during the Bath Club interview on WJAS at 8.

Mrs. Moody

Proper operation of short-wave receivers is discussed in non-technical language on KQV at 7:45 when David S. Patterson interviews C. I. Donbar, vice chairman of the Pittsburgh section of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

"Song of the Bayou" Rube Bloom's prize-winning song is presented by Tom, Dick and Harry on KDKA at 8:15.

"Hungry Men" is the topic of an address by Ensign Clifford Brindley of the Salvation Army, over an NBC network including WCAE at 6:25.

Celebrating the sixth anniversary of a recital he gave in his home town, Nashville, Tenn., which marked the turning point of his career, Joseph Macpherson, Metropolitan bass, makes a guest appearance with Josef Pasternack's Orchestra on KDKA at 8:30.

Excerpts from Victor Herbert's operetta, "Orange Blossoms," are featured by Grace Moore, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, on WCAE at 9, with the Revelers and David Mendoza's Orchestra.

Two nationally known figures are heard over nation-wide networks today. President Hoover, speaking at the Governors' Conference in Richmond, Va., is heard today at 3:15 over both WCAE and KDKA. Tonight at 10:30 Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, paying tribute to George Washington, is heard over WCAE.

The Westinghouse Watchmen, on KDKA at 6:15, sing "Put That Sun Back in the Sky," at the request of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police stationed at Southampton Island in the Far North.

"Deep River Tunes," a new program, makes its appearance on the KQV schedule at 9:30, featuring Hector Wolfe, baritone; the Carr Sisters, harmony duo, and soloists with organ accompaniment.

Fan Fare

MLLE. DIANE LAVAL, Pittsburgh songster heard in a recital of American songs in the French manner from KDKA today at 8:15, recently returned from two years of study and concert appearances in Paris, Switzerland and Rome. Kate Smith is busy these days. She rises at 8:30 a. m. and doesn't get to bed until 3 a. m. Her days include four vaudeville appearances, rehearsal and presentation of her radio programs, practicing new songs, receiving interviewers, caring for her fan mail and business correspondence and filling a singing engagement from 12:30 to 2:30 a. m.

Mlle. Laval

Irene Bordini selects her songs for broadcasting only after long hours of practice, and true to the French tradition, the tune means nothing to her unless the words have a special appeal.

Victor Moore has played more than 600 roles on the legitimate stage and has been in every state in the union. Eventually to become a comedian, he sought roles as the villain, wearing a long sweeping mustache when he first went on the stage.

Fifty new members from among the inmates of Auburn Prison were recently enrolled in Sigmund Spaeth's Keys to Happiness, the largest piano class in the world . . . Lawrence Tibbett has signed a new contract to continue as featured soloist on that fine program for the month of May . . . Leonard Joy arranges all of his own scores . . . Kelvin Keech, NBC announcer, recently came to the studio bearing a letter from May Singhi Breen certifying that he can play the ukulele.

NOW RIP FAT OFF
6 OR 7 POUNDS A WEEK

A Discovery Recently Brought Here from England That Enables the Average Fat Person to Lose 6 or More Pounds Weekly . . . Without Starvation or One Extra Step of Exercise

It seems that the British have found a way to rip off excess fat that's the dream of every (so-fat person. That is, to rip it off without starving, without tiring exercise.

Under an extraordinarily simple and pleasant regimen discovered there, the average fat person loses as much as six to ten pounds weekly; yet suffers no pangs of hunger, no aching muscles, no weakness or depression. Returning travelers from Europe talked so much about it, that it has now been brought to this country. Anyone can follow it; so if you want to get thin, here's your chance.

Eat, Sleep, Drink and Grow Thin, Doing Only This

All the method involves is a glass of water before breakfast—to clear the intestines and tone the system—and a few minor changes in your diet.

Here is what you do: Tear this article out and save it, so you won't forget.

Before Breakfast: Drink an ordinary tumbler full of cool water to which you've added a teaspoon of effervescent salt. (Get the brand named "Andrews" at any drug store.) This to eliminate the usual curse of fat people: accumulated poisons and bloat. Also to cut the moisture weight of your body—sometimes as much as three pounds in one day.

At Meals: Cut out ONLY fat meats. Eat your usual quantity of lean meats and ADD a double-supply of green vegetables... spinach, cabbage, fresh peas, lettuce, etc. Then for dessert, shift from pastry and pies to FRESH FRUIT. The more you eat of these the better. They're super-nourishing vitamin foods.

Drink, too, if you like them, sauerkraut juice, tomato juice or orange juice "cocktails" before lunch and supper. Eat fresh fruit, too, before bed if you like to eat before retiring.

That's all you do. No wonder England and all of Europe is cheering this discovery. You lose weight day by day, week by week... usually from six or seven pounds weekly to even as much as ten pounds, and feel amazingly more alert and active while you are. Doctors of world knowledge widely endorse this way. The salt tones and clears the system. The vitamin foods take the place of those that build weight and fat, and thus fat goes like magic.

Embark on the Great Adventure of getting thin today. Ask your doctor about this if you wish to be doubly sure this is the simplest, safest way to lose embarrassing bulk. You can get Andrews Effervescent Salt at any drug store for a few cents.

4 YEAR SERVICE PLAN
Investigate

NOW after 20 years of research, including over five years experience with more than a million and a quarter users, General Electric again steps ahead of the refrigerator industry with a service contract protecting each new buyer against all service and repair charges on the Monitor Top mechanism for three additional years beyond the standard one year warranty. In case of trouble or failure General Electric does not patch the mechanism. A factory unit is installed without charge if failure occurs within the contract service period.

The General Electric Monitor Top mechanism is entirely different from the hundred conventional type machines in appearance—in basic design—in operating principle—and in performance!

We agree, Madam.
Nothing could make dishwashing a pleasure

BUT see how much easier it is with the New Oxydol

● Three times a day, 366 days this year, women must wash dishes! But there's a way to make it easier now.

Sprinkle the New Oxydol in your dishpan—and see how quick and easy dishwashing becomes. Its lively suds cut grease like a flash so dishes rinse sparkling clean!

Rich, long-lasting suds are the secret of easy clothes washing, too. Oxydol's busy suds float dirt out of clothes and hold it out as they are fresh and clean. That's why the New Oxydol saves your work and time—because it makes 50% more suds—richer, thicker, more fragrant suds.

And it's so easy on your hands you know it's safe for dainty things. Use enough for rich suds—it never balls up or leaves a scum even in the hardest water—and all water turns hard when you put in dirty clothes or dishes.

Ask your grocer today for a package of Oxydol.

BOGGS & BUHL

Phone FA. 2600 — Federal St., N. S. Pgh., Pa.

To The Public:

FOR OVER a half century Boggs & Buhl has conducted two sensational REMNANT DAYS—January and July each year. We now announce a departure from this policy. REMNANT DAYS hereafter will be held at the end of each peak selling season.

The fundamental reason determining this new policy: the movement of merchandise in season, while there is still active demand for it.

Thus, in this end-of-April REMNANT DAY we will clear, at customary Remnant Day red ink prices, thousands of dollars worth of Spring merchandise while people are wanting it. You won't have to wait until July for REMNANT DAY prices on Spring coats, suits, dresses, millinery, handbags, shoes, etc. Now — at the time when people are moving, and general housecleaning, repairing, repainting, etc., are in order, REMNANT DAY prices on carpets and rugs, furniture, curtains and draperies and housewares of all kinds will be far more welcome than in July. And the remnants of silks, cottons, woolens, laces and linens will be out at REMNANT DAY prices next FRIDAY, instead of taking their turn for your favor next July.

REMNANT DAY—magic words—means one store and only one store to the people of this community—Boggs & Buhl. The supremacy of REMNANT DAY at this store has never been approached by any other store. It is unquestionably the greatest thing of its kind in America. A sale must be worthy of such keen interest and popularity—and REMNANT DAY always is. Boggs & Buhl will whole-heartedly continue to leave nothing undone that will help maintain the fine reputation the event holds for the people throughout the tri-state area.

PUBLIC ASKED BY FATHER COX TO VIEW NEEDY

Urgent Need for Funds Brings Approval For Drive Just Launched

The Rev. Father James R. Cox personally invites all of Pittsburgh to come to old St. Patrick's Church at noontime any day of the week and take a look at his bread line.

Or, if the bread line is too hard on the eyes, he invites Pittsburghers to come and see the long lines of unfortunate men and women who every morning come for their daily baskets of food. And Father Cox would like to have everyone see "Shantytown" where scores of his jobless live.

Father Cox

It is on account of these urgent demands that Father Cox has whole-heartedly placed his approval on the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery drive just launched by this newspaper. Every new home delivery order secured for the Sun-Telegraph through this drive brings to Father Cox the usual commission paid on such orders and from the results already in hand it is believed that the "father of the jobless" will get a well worth-while sum to help him in carrying on his work among the destitute and jobless.

If you wish to help Father Cox send in your order to have the Sun-Telegraph delivered by carrier to your home. You will find a subscription blank on this page. You may mail it direct to Father Cox if you wish.

If you are already taking the Sun-Telegraph and would like to help Father Cox, cut out the order blank and get a neighbor, friend or relative to sign it.

CRASH 'HABIT' RARE HERE

Traffic accident records of the Bureau of Traffic Planning for 1928 to 1931 inclusive show that only 371 out of approximately 19,000 drivers involved in accidents were connected with two or more during the period.

There are 12,000 accidents on file for Pittsburgh during the period and the repeaters were involved in 773 or 6.4 per cent of the total. A total of 344 drivers were involved in two accidents, 25 were in three accidents and two were in five accidents.

Reported accidents increased in the latter three years, but this was ascribed to more effective reporting rather than to greater carelessness in driving. Only one woman driver was included in the 27 with three or more accidents. Both men involved in five accidents were bus drivers.

Plant Worker Hurt, Dies in Hospital

A fractured skull suffered while at work in the plant of the Blaw-Knox Company at Blawnox late yesterday caused the death of George Shelby, 23, of Sixth street, Verona, in West Penn Hospital two hours later, according to the Coroner's report.

Burns from Gasoline Fatal to Woman

Burns suffered when gasoline with which she was cleaning a washing machine ignited resulted in the death of Mrs. Marie Myers, 40, of Lincoln avenue, North Vandergrift, in the Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum, last night.

John Toole, in whose home Mrs. Myers was employed, beat out the flames and took her to the hospital, where she died a few hours later. She leaves three children.

FOOD EXHIBIT SHOWS CAKES

Cakes from all parts of the tri-state district are arriving at the Food Show at Motor Square Garden for the cake convention which opens today.

Angel food cakes are to be displayed today. Tomorrow butter cakes will be the center of attention. After the show, cakes will be turned over to charitable institutions. Cash prizes are being given to the bakers of the best cakes.

Two grand prizes are to be given to women attending the economics school when the show closes at the end of the week. The prizes are a refrigerator and an electric washing machine.

New stocks of food samples and gifts are being taken to the garden by exhibitors. Stars of the radio world have been presenting special musical programs. Tonight Miss Mae Wonn, daughter of H. M. Wonn, former president of the Allegheny County Grocers' Association, will speak.

Collapses Watching Building Job, Dies

Joseph DeBacher, 60, of 1135 Buente street, collapsed late yesterday while watching men on a construction job at Stanton avenue and Hawthorne street. He was taken to West Penn Hospital where he died a short time later. Cerebral hemorrhage was given as the cause.

Family Aid Canvass to Be Launched in Sewickley

KLINE, SUCCOP TO LEAVE FOR BUTLER SUNDAY

RELIEF DRIVE IN SEWICKLEY DISTRICT

Family Aid Drive Meeting Scheduled for Friday; Women Report Donations

Plans were being completed today for the opening meeting in the Family-Help-Family campaign in Sewickley, to be held Friday night in the Borough Building. Speakers will include A. C. Robinson and James C. Chaplin.

Capt. Cyrus B. Miller, chairman in Sewickley, announced the organization is being perfected to cover 16 districts. The campaign will get under way Saturday and Sunday, Miller said.

Sufficient funds are expected to take care of existing needs for six or eight months and provide a generous allotment to the Family-Help-Family campaign. Six teams have been organized in Sewickley, two in Edgewood, and one each in Haysville, Glen Osborne, Leetsdale, as well as Sewickley Heights and Leet Township.

Included in the first report of the women's division of $17,800 was a contribution of $3,500 from 23 schools, representing only partial reports from teachers, according to Mrs. Harry J. Miller, in charge of presenting the campaign to the schools.

The administration building of the Board of Education reported more than $1,000. Teachers throughout the public school system, Mrs. Miller said, who have been well aware for months of the seriousness of conditions are lending their aid to the appeal.

Announcement was made that the Pittsburgh City Firemen's Relief Fund contributed $4,000, to take care of 40 families, through Mayor Charles H. Kline, treasurer of the fund.

Bystander Beaten In Street Battle

Leo Bigley, 20, of 1103 Beaver avenue, was found by North Side police today at Beaver avenue and Fayette street, suffering from two severe scalp lacerations. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital in a serious condition.

Bigley was found by John Kramer, of 1244 Juniata street, who said he saw a crowd of men fighting at the street intersection. As Bigley fell, Kramer said, the men fled. Police, advancing the theory Bigley was the victim of a mistaken identity, said the man told them he had no enemies.

'Bugs' Proposes Federal Subsidy For Poor 'Shorts'

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

After hearing the sad story told by the shorts in Washington, there is nothing to do but give 'em a government subsidy.

The Senate has become a health resort. Financiers crawl in on crutches and dash out in wheel chairs.

We haven't heard so many complaints and symptoms since the Wickersham clinic stuffed the archives with second guesses.

You can hardly blame Tom Heflin for wanting his seat back. After all, what did Tom do? He refused to support Al Smith. And the 1928 election showed that was a popular crime.

There's a lot of fun down in the Senate for a man like Heflin. They gave him the muffled drum roll for a thing Al is now doing to Roosevelt.

There is so much blame to be shared down there you would think they would require Heflin in case of a tie. They drummed Tom out and he wants to get in again without the music.

Even if Tom did make a few hundred mistakes everybody is entitled to two chances.

Boulevard Crash Injures Woman; Motorist Flees After North Side Wreck

Suffering bruises when an automobile she was driving was struck and overturned by another at Bigelow boulevard and Herron avenue, Mildred Suckling, 35, of 461 South Atlantic avenue, was treated at St. Margaret's Hospital last night.

Daniel Kennedy, of Glenshaw, alleged driver of the car, was lodged in Center Avenue Police Station on a reckless driving charge.

Edward R. Bengel, of 312 Newburn drive, Mt. Lebanon, suffered a laceration of the knee when his automobile was struck by another at Sandusky street and East Stockton avenue, North Side, last night. Bengel's automobile was overturned and the driver of the other machine, police said, failed to stop. Bengel was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Daniel Kelly, 3, of 318 Lawn street, suffered body bruises when he was struck by a truck while playing near his home last night. He was taken to Mercy Hospital.

HAYS TO HEAD MINE PROBE

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—The American Civil Liberties Union had practically completed arrangements today for sending a delegation of men and women to Kentucky to investigate conditions in the coal fields there.

Four of six representatives who will leave New York tomorrow afternoon have been selected. They are Arthur Garfield Hays, lawyer prominent in the union's affairs; Joseph B. Matthews, a member of the Fellowship of Reconciliation; Prof. Ernest Sutherland Bates, formerly of the University of Oregon, and Dorothy Kenyon, lawyer and a member of the union's international committee. One of the two other representatives will be a clergyman.

The New York delegation will be joined at Harrisburg, Pa., by Evelyn Preston, a member of the union and an active worker in the League for Industrial Democracy.

Pitt Scientist Exploring Jungle Treed By Boars

Emmet Reid Blake, University of Pittsburgh scientist, who will return Saturday from a scientific expedition into the Venezuelan jungle, knows how it feels to be treed by a herd of infuriated wild boars.

Blake left December 19 for South America with the Mandel-Orinoco expedition. En route home he left the exploring party at Trinidad to make a one-man exploration trip for specimens of wild life. On his arrival in New York yesterday he related his thrilling adventure.

One morning before dawn after shooting one of a herd of peccaries, a species of wild boar, he was charged by 11 others and had to seek refuge in a tree. The infuriated animals tried to gnaw down his perch of safety, but the trunk was large enough that it was still standing at daylight, when the boars ran away.

In four weeks in the jungle, Blake trapped 900 birds and shot a large number of deadly snakes and lizards.

Peabody High Girl Wins Tech Scholarship in National Contest

By PENELOPE REDD

With her ink and brush sketches of horses and dogs, Nancy Leitch, 17-year-old senior Peabody High School girl, won the only first prize in pictorial arts in the Western Pennsylvania section of the National Scholastic Awards Contest this year. She will receive a one-year scholarship to the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Tech, where she will study painting and decorating.

Nearly 40 high school boys and girls in Pittsburgh and vicinity were awarded prizes and honorable mention for jewelry, pottery, sculptoring and pictorial arts in this annual group of prizes for creative work by secondary school students.

More than 100 exhibits of the art work of 35 girls and 68 boys from city high schools will be shown in the fifth national High School Art Exhibition, which opens at Carnegie Institute today. In addition, exhibits of two girls and 11 boys from other high schools in Western Pennsylvania will be shown.

Besides Nancy Leitch, Robert Logan, 19, of Chislett street, claimed a second prize of $15 in pottery for Peabody High School. Robert Rettman, 16, of Connelley Trade School, received the Carnegie Museum award of $15. Joseph Kleiger, 17, of Fifth Avenue High School, was awarded a pictorial arts second prize of $25. George Penman, 17, took a second prize of $25 in jewelry for South Hills High School, and Joseph Grilletta, 15, of Connelley Trade School, received a third prize of $15 for cover design.

Nine honorable mentions were granted to Connelley Trade School, six to Peabody, five to Schenley, three to Allegheny, two to Taylor Allderdice and one each to Shady Side Academy, South Hills and Perry High School.

Miss Redd

The fifth National High School Art Exhibition will be opened with a press review this evening at the Carnegie Institute.

To this reviewer, who conceived the idea, it is a bit overwhelming to realize that the initial prize of $25, contributed in 1925 by John Fraser, has multiplied into thousands of dollars distributed in 191 prizes and seven scholarships for the art division alone.

Fitting it is that the work at Peabody High School, which inspired the writer to inaugurate the national high school art exhibit, should be honored by a well-merited scholarship for Nancy Leitch. Her excellent drawings of animals indicate a talent that will be well nurtured at the Carnegie Tech.

Jacob Krakowsky, of Lakewood, O., has been given a special award because he was unable to accept a scholarship last year. He will attend the Columbus School of Art. His two portraits show promise.

Michael Ursulescu, of Cass Tech High School, Detroit, won a scholarship for the Art Institute of Chicago, with a Lucioni-like still life study of a rubber plant and a jug on a rush-seated chair. The painting is in the contemporary idiom and is developed with organization amazing in so young an artist.

Wesley Noble, of Charleston, W. Va., who will attend the Rhode Island School of Design at Providence, does a Russian camp conveying the desirable quality of atmosphere.

Nevian Chase, Arsenal Technical High School, Indianapolis, a highly gifted young person with the joyous abandon of youth, will make good use of her opportunity to work at the Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

Robert McCloskey, of Hamilton, O., who will go to the Vesper George School of Art, Boston, has a mature balance of idea, education and technic that isolates his work from all the other scholarship winners.

DESIGN SCHOLARSHIP

Mary Evola, of Pittsburgh, Cal., was awarded a scholarship on her decorative design for the California School of Arts and Crafts in Oakland.

The 800 numbers listed include many items in excess of that figure since more than one example by a prize student is frequently included. This in turn is the residium from the 7,000 pieces representing 700 cities which were submitted to the jury. The 800 shown probably is the ultimate selection from the work of a quarter million high school students.

Encouraging it is to report that having chosen the best of the pictorial items without the aid of a catalogue, when the numbers were checked, Pittsburgh ranked with Detroit and Indianapolis, in having produced the greatest number of superior works.

A special review will be written on the Pittsburgh students.

DEFENSE READY TO FACE TRIAL ON MONDAY

Hotel Suite Reserved for Mayor's Party; Park and Aides May Go This Week

Mayor Charles H. Kline and his deposed director of supplies, Bertram L. Succop, will leave Sunday for Butler, to stand trial on charges of irregularities in office.

They will be accompanied by their counsel, Charles B. Prichard, Edward G. Coll and E. L. Kearns, and will take up quarters at the Hotel Nixon, where the mayor has engaged a suite for the trial period. Attorney Prichard today remarked:

"It is just another trial to me, but I will be glad when it is over."

Asked if any surprise moves would be made before the case is called Monday, Prichard said he knew of none. He added:

"We are ready to go to trial and were ready on March 14 when the case was postponed."

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and his assistant, George F. P. Langfitt, may go to Butler in a day or two, depending on developments. Park has engaged the top floor of the Nixon Hotel for the legal staff and the commonwealth's witnesses.

The proceedings will be held under the direction of District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler, who, after assisting in the selection of a jury, will turn the case over to the prosecutors from Allegheny County.

OPEN PARLEY FOR PARENTS

The first Parent Education Conference will be held tomorrow and Friday at the Hotel Schenley with Ralph P. Bridgman, national director of the National Council of Parent Education, as one of the principal speakers.

Mr. Bridgman

His subject will be "Parental Authority in a Changing World." He will seek to give parents an understanding of how learning and growth takes place in a child's mind. The sessions are open to the public.

Drowned Springdale Boy's Body Found

The body of a boy recovered from the Ohio River near Avalon Station late yesterday was identified at the County Morgue several hours later as that of David Corrigan, 10, of 529 Standard avenue, Springdale. The victim's brother, Andrew, made the identification.

David lost his life April 4 when he attempted to row across the Allegheny River at the Springdale Dam in a boat. The swift current swept the skiff over the dam, hurling the boat into the stream.

Unidentified Man Dies at Movie Show

Morgue attaches today were endeavoring to establish the identity of a man who died from a heart attack while watching a movie in the Ritz Theater, 219 Fifth avenue, last night. No marks of identification were found in his clothing.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD April 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

When you think you have heard all the deviltment about anything, why you haven't heard anything till a little Italian Congressman (and a Republican too, strange to say) from New York City, La Guardia, he's always got the evidence. He dragged in a trunk full of canceled checks that brokers had given financial writers. You know it's too bad everybody was so busy getting in on it that no one had time to investigate Wall street before '29, when the horse was being stolen. Yours, WILL.

DEFENSE CUTS OPPOSED BY OFFICERS

Reserve Organization Set To Elect in Concluding Sessions of Convention

Closing business sessions were being held today by the Reserve Officers' Association in convention in the William Penn Hotel. The morning's sessions opened with an address by Senator David A. Reed, after which a business session was held.

Included in the morning sessions was an address by Maj. Gen. Charles H. Muir, representative from the Third Congressional District of Oregon. Election of officers was scheduled.

The National Council was to begin the afternoon activities. The annual banquet will be held tonight.

The convention will close tomorrow with sightseeing tours and attendance at the baseball game at Forbes Field.

DEFENSE CUTS HIT

Bills in Congress cutting defense appropriations that will leave the United States as unprepared as at the beginning of the World War were attacked by Brig. Gen. John Ross Delafield, commander-in-chief of the Military Order of the World War, and Brig. Gen. Andrew Moses, of the War Department General Staff, yesterday. Gen. Delafield said:

"The depression is used as a reason for curtailment which, if carried further, will leave us as unprepared as China."

Included in the resolutions was opposition to any elimination or in any way diminish or prohibit the continuation of military training in any manner as now carried on by the War Department.

The convention recommended to Congress inclusion in the second deficiency bill the amount necessary to provide active duty flying for Air Reserve combat pilots for the remainder of the year.

GUARD BILL UPHELD

Passage of the National Guard bill was urged to provide for the creation of a National Guard of the United States with provisions for National Guard Reserves.

Continuance of military training in the R. O. T. C. at colleges and universities was also recommended.

Congress was urged to support the universal draft act originally proposed by the American Legion as a means of preserving peace.

The convention, in its closing sessions, drafted a recommendation of gratitude for activity on behalf of an adequate national defense and to military officers and laymen who aided in the convention.

THEY WOULD SING WITH WHITEMAN!

MISS NANCY GARD IN AN AUDITION AT KDKA AS SCORES OF OTHERS WAIT TO FOLLOW

Miss Gard, Irwin (Pa.) girl, singing into a microphone to an audience of three judges who will select 25 young Pittsburgh men and women from whom Paul Whiteman will select one to sing with his band on a coast-to-coast broadcast Friday night. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

JUDGES RESUME WHITEMAN TEST

Judges resumed elimination auditions at KDKA studios this morning. They listened to 117 local aspirants for Paul Whiteman's "Youth of America" tests yesterday. This morning another capacity crowd of contestants appeared at the studios. The winner will be heard with Paul Whiteman and his Pontiac Chieftains on their coast-to-coast broadcast Friday night. Miss Gertrude Schweitzer, audition expert of the National Broadcasting Company, one of the judges, said:

"Pittsburgh talent is unusually good, and we believe Mr. Whiteman's ability will be put to a severe test in choosing a winner."

FRIEDSAM, OLD REPORTER, DIES

Albert Friedsam, 61, of 420 Hastings street, a veteran newspaperman, died last night in the West Penn Hospital. While a reporter on the old Pittsburgh Times he covered the Johnstown flood. Later he was Pittsburgh correspondent for several Pennsylvania newspapers. In 1914 he compiled the Gazette Times Almanac. He was at one time associated with the coke edition of the Connellsville (Pa.) Courier.

Mr. Friedsam was born in Germany. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Grace R. Friedsam, a brother, Ralph, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Simons. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from his residence.

POWERS BURIED IN PRISON PLOT

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., April 27.—(AP.)—Rumors concerning the disposition of the body of Harry F. Powers, matrimonial agency slayer who was hanged more than a month ago, were set at rest here today with the receipt of information in a letter from A. C. Scroggins, warden of the state penitentiary at Moundsville. He stated that the body of the mass slayer was "buried quite some time ago in the prison burial grounds."

The burial took place in the prison cemetery on Tom's Run, three miles from Moundsville, "in fulfillment of a promise made by the writer not only to Harry Powers but also at the urgent request of his wife," the letter stated.

The exact date of the burial was not disclosed by Scroggins, but he added that "we consider the incident closed. In fact, no mention has been made of it for three or four weeks."

Rumors had been current here that the body had been taken secretly to Morgantown for examination by scientists in West Virginia University School of Medicine.

Lowenstein Valet Ends Life in Paris

PARIS, April 27.—(INS.)—Mystery today surrounded the suicide of the British valet of Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, who killed himself in 1928 by jumping from an airplane over the British channel.

The valet, Fred Baxter, 28, shot himself to death last Friday, but the act was not made public until last night. The newspaper Le Matin quoted a neighbor who knew Baxter as saying the valet knew too much about the Loewenstein suicide.

CARMEN TO ACT ON WAGE CUT AT MEETINGS

Vote on Company's Proposal Expected at Sessions Tomorrow and Friday

Meetings of the 2,200 trolley men of Pittsburgh Railways Company to voice their sentiments on the proposal of the company that they accept a voluntary wage reduction of 10 per cent will be held in Moose Temple tomorrow night and Friday morning.

This was made known today with the arrival of a representative of the international organization of the Street Railway Employes Union to assist in mediating differences between the men and the company. It is expected the men will vote on the wage proposition.

The union wage committee, as indicated in the report of Charles A. Finley, of the Conference Traction Board, made to City Council, could not see its way clear to take back to the employes the suggestion of a 10 per cent reduction.

The international representative is expected to address the men at tomorrow's and Friday's meetings, when the wage committee, of which W. H. Gallagher is chairman and P. J. McGrath, secretary, will tell the results of conferences with the railways company.

POPE GETS NEW MARCONI SET

VATICAN CITY, April 28.—(INS.)—Work was begun today for the installation of one of Guglielmo Marconi's new ultra-short wave radio sets for operation between the Vatican and Pope Pius' summer villa, Castel Gandolfo, near Rome.

The Pope ordered the set after tests yesterday.

It was the first definite contract for one of the new sets, the result of the famed wireless inventor's latest experiments. The Italian government had tentatively agreed to use the apparatus.

The ultra-short wave permits telephonic communication between moving objects, such as trains, motor cars, ships, etc., and also prevents messages from being picked up by outsiders.

Closed Bank Receiver Recovers in Hospital

M. H. Sims, receiver of the closed Monongahela National Bank, is recovering from a serious illness in West Penn Hospital, it was announced today. Sims, who had been confined to his home at 514 Rosslyn place two weeks, was taken to the hospital Sunday.

No indication of a dividend payment to depositors could be had at the bank yesterday, although progress in liquidation was reported. Reorganization of the bank, which was closed more than five months ago, has been discussed, but no definite plan has been decided upon, it was said.

Hymie Martin Trial To Begin May 31

CLEVELAND, April 27.—(AP.)—The second trial of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, charged with first degree murder of former Councilman William E. Potter, will start May 31, the prosecution and defense have decided.

Martin was once convicted of the killing and was sentenced to life imprisonment, but the Appellate Court granted him a new trial which the Supreme Court upheld. Since then Betty Gray, a star state witness, has repudiated her testimony and disappeared.

Morgantown Nurse Ends Life in Leap

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Miss Kathleen Marvel, 22-year-old nurse, wrote a note saying she was discouraged by continued ill health and leaped to her death from the bathroom window of her fifth story apartment in Brooklyn today. She came here 10 months ago from Morgantown, W. Va., and shared an apartment with Mary Valla, also a nurse. The two were employed at the Madison Park Sanitorium, Brooklyn.

THEATER SAFE LOOTING FOILED

An attempt to rob the safe of the Arsenal Theater, 4109 Butler street, was frustrated early today by Capt. Nuncio Marino and a squad of patrolmen from the Forty-third Street Police Station. Richard Brown, 19, without a home, was arrested, police say, as he fled from the building.

Police were called to the theater by William Gempe, of 132 Forty-second street, theater porter, who heard a noise in the office as he entered the building. A safe-drilling kit was found on the balcony of the theater.

OBITUARY

John C. Heil

Funeral services for John C. Heil, well known in the steel industry, who died suddenly in the Allegheny General Hospital, will be held at his home, 1241 Chartiers avenue. Mr. Heil was a teacher in the West End Methodist Episcopal Sunday school and connected with the Singer-Nimick plant of the Crucible Steel Company. She leaves four daughters, Mrs. John M. Davison, Wilkinsburg; Mrs. Roland L. Trauger, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Charles K. Ray, Ingomar, and Miss Laura A. Young, Pittsburgh; two grandsons and a sister, Miss Anna F. Ross, of Pittsburgh.

Thousands in Terror As Old Mines Burn

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 27.—(INS.)—Thousands of persons living over the Central Greta and the Anvil Creek collieries were terrified today when the abandoned mines developed into a huge, raging man-made Vesuvius.

Great underground fires, which authorities have abandoned hope of controlling, burned throughout the mines, extending under a large area along the Sydney-Brisbane Railroad.

Carole Lombard and William Powell Ill

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—(AP.)—Victim of nervous breakdown followed by severe attack of grippe, Carole Lombard, motion picture actress, has been seriously ill for the past two weeks, it was learned today. She has passed the crisis, however, and her recovery is expected in about a week, it was said.

Her husband, William Powell, screen actor, also has been ill of severe cold.

Salt Lake City Takes Carrots for Rent

SALT LAKE CITY, April 27.—(AP.)—Utah pioneers paid with produce their church tithes, store bills and even theater admissions.

The Salt Lake City Commission revived the custom yesterday when it agreed to accept as rent for a tract of city-owned ground a share of a crop of carrots. The carrots will be fed to animals in the city zoo.

Drys Draw Guns In Downtown Raid

Guns were drawn by prohibition agents during a raid upon an alleged speakeasy at 565 Seventh avenue late yesterday when a customer attacked a raider. The customer, identified as Luigi Inpillicini, hit the agent in the face and then attempted to wield a knife, the raiders said. Inpillicini and Sam Felich, alias Angelina, will be given a hearing today before a United States Commissioner.

Detroit University Chief Dies at 57

DETROIT, April 27.—(AP.)—The Very Rev. John P. McNichols, 57, under whose administration the University of Detroit enjoyed its greatest development, died last night.

When he assumed the presidency in 1921, the university was housed in a few downtown buildings. Now the institution embraces 80 acres at the outskirts of the city and his dream of a $40,000,000 college plant has been one-fourth realized.

DEMAND PLAYING VALUE FOR HEINIE

A REPORT THAT the Brooklyn club, after withdrawing a request for waivers on a reserve infielder who was unsuccessfully claimed by the Pittsburgh management for utility purposes, has broached the subject of a deal for Pitcher Heinie Meine, is confirmed at Pirate headquarters. It is also admitted that a mild interest in the holdout pitcher has been shown by one or two other clubs. But in making clear the Pittsburgh club's attitude in the case, President W. E. Benswanger adds that no offer worthy of consideration has yet been made, and intimates there is no immediate prospect of a trade.

Heinie Meine

"Naturally, we prefer to sign Meine for our own use, if it can be done," he said. "But if it can't be done, we will, of course, in the interest of the club's playing strength, consider a trade. But we'll not let him go for any second-string infielder or pinch-hitting outfielder. We must get his full value. A regular starting pitcher is preferred. In any event, it must be a first-class player. Otherwise, Meine will stay right where he is, even though it means a loss to us. He is not for sale for cash."

THAT IT PAYS to spend money in baseball, and that no magnate ever loses out through paying fancy prices for colorful players of the right caliber, has been demonstrated again this spring in the cases of the Brooklyn and Cincinnati clubs. Full of new enthusiasm, and appreciating the efforts to get a winner, the home fans quickly return at the gate all that has been spent and more.

The Dodger owners paid $25,000 for Hack Wilson and gave up a similar sum in the six-player deal with the Reds. The result? Despite an early slump that put it in last place, the club drew 125,000 customers in seven games at home to date, an average of close to 18,000.

ONE CROWD APPROXIMATED 35,000, two others were better than 20,000, and at none of the seven games was the attendance less than 7,000. On opening day the Dodgers played to 28,000, while the world champion Cardinals, after selling Grimes, Hack Wilson and Hafey, were able to draw only 5,900 in their curtain-raiser.

The Cincinnati club always draws well on opening day and then sees the crowds dwindle after a defeat or two. For that reason it is permitted to open at home every year, a privilege extended to no other team. But this year Redland lived down its reputation of being a one-day town.

NOT ONLY WERE 28,000 fans on hand for the starter, but they kept on coming at later games. In the first Sunday event there the Pirates drew 18,700. The crowds were so consistently large that after the first week of the season Cincinnati was leading the National League in attendance. All because the club owners had assumed some big salaries to get popular players like Herman and Hafey. It's always so. When a club spends money to give its fans something worth looking at they'll pay it back with interest before the season is far advanced.

Billy Evans

A FEW EXTRA home runs, and the pitchers hint that the lively ball has been brought back. A few well-pitched games, and the hitters grumble that the pill has been further deadened. On both sides, of course, it's largely a game of alibi.

Some brilliant spring pitching in the American League led to a report that the magnates had secretly adopted a less lively ball. Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, vigorously denies it. "Further changes to deaden the ball and to encourage a return of the old-fashioned game were discussed at the winter meetings," Evans says, "but nothing was done about it. The ball in use is identical with that used last year."

IT WAS JUST the reverse in the National League. Because Bill Terry was having a home run streak, somebody passed the word around that the bunny ball had returned. When Terry was asked if his slugging spree had been due to a livelier ball he said he would answer the question by asking another.

"Has anybody else in our league hit six home runs in four consecutive days?" he countered. "I know that sounds like I'm tooting my own horn, but really, isn't it the best answer I can give? It ought to prove that the ball has nothing to do with it. If it were lively everybody would be hitting more homers."

THE DEATH OF Billy Rodenbach in New York, following an operation for a stomach ailment, recalls to veteran Pittsburgh boxing fans the last national championship A. A. U. glove tournament held in this city. That was back in 1901, and the old Avenue Theater in Fifth avenue was the scene. With John L. Scholes, of Toronto, lightweight boxer, and Max Wiley, of Rochester, N. Y., among the wrestlers, Rodenbach was one of the standouts of that tournament. He not only retained the national middleweight title, which he had won in 1900, but captured the heavyweight crown as well. Billy held the middleweight honors from 1900 to 1904, inclusive, and also won the heavyweight laurels again in 1904 in California, defeating Sam Berger, who weighed 200 pounds and had been rated as unbeatable among the amateurs.

BEFORE THE COAST bout, Berger's friends took up a subscription to purchase a silver loving cup for the winner. Feeling sure he would win, Berger chipped in a tidy sum of his own to make it a gold cup instead of a silver one. Rodenbach handed him a lacing and carried back to New York the trophy which Berger practically had paid for himself.

Rodenbach scorned fancy boxing and the jabbing stuff. He was the fire-eating type of fighter, always willing to take a punch or two in order to land one of his own. There is little doubt that he could have won a professional championship, but before he could make the attempt his ring career was ended when his left arm was broken in two places and its use permanently impaired.

ONLY ONE OTHER national amateur championship boxing tournament besides that of 1901 was ever held here. It took place in late March, 1895, at Cyclorama Hall, on what is now the North Side. Pittsburgh came out with four title winners in Jimmy Salmon, 105 pounds; Eddie Horen, 115; Loudon Campbell, 125, and Mike Lewis, 158.

The victories of Campbell and Lewis were the most notable. Campbell beat Charley Lovell. Billy McMahon and Ed Muntzer to win the title, stopping McMahon in one round. After defeating such local celebrities as Herman Beck and John Finnigan, Lewis in the final took the measure of a national figure in the person of Doc Payne, of Cleveland. To reach the final, by the way, Payne defeated Charley Gelbert, father of the present shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Barry Wood

THE FACT THAT Barry Wood was allowed to take part in such a rough sport as hockey, wherein an injury might have crippled him for football, was only one instance showing that the gridiron game does not control everything else in Harvard athletics. Spring lineups, as inspected by Bob Dunbar, show a number of next fall's football hopes engaged in two hazardous pastimes. Eddie Rogers, Bernie Feins, Deeb Peter and Sidney Rabinowitz are playing lacrosse, while Irad Hardy, Stanton Whitney and Allie Sherman are on the rugby team. If the football coaches dominated the athletic councils they surely would keep their grid material out of such risky games, but the attitude at Harvard is that football is a fall sport, and if any gridders wish to engage in physical contact pastime in other seasons they must be permitted to do so.

LINKS IN FINE TRIM; M'BRIDE AGAIN PRO

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Allegheny County South Park golf course officially was opened to the public at 10 o'clock this morning despite wintry breezes not conducive to comfortable play. Director of Parks Paul B. Riis was master of ceremonies. Owing to the frigid weather only a small crowd was on hand to see Director Riis strike the first ball.

The North Park links will be formally opened for play on Friday morning at 10 a. m.

The South Park course appeared to be in splendid shape for its 1932 inaugural. While there is construction work being done on the seventh hole, the entire 18 are open for play without any sort of interference. The turf is much improved throughout, and the greens are in fine condition.

McBRIDE ON JOB

Al McBride again is back on the job as professional. Jimmy Comoroda has been replaced as caddie master by Spiff Benedict, formerly of the Youghiogheny Country Club, of McKeesport.

Speaking of caddie masters, Director Riis announced that he has followed the suggestion of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, and that the County Commissioners have decreed that the caddie masters at the parks links will not be permitted to accept any fee from the caddies this season.

"The Commissioners believe," Director Riis said, "that $125 per month is sufficient salary for a caddie master. It is only fair that they do not cut in on the little pay the caddie receives for his work."

KOCH LEADS FIELD

Herman Koch, with an 86-10—76, led the field in the initial tourney of the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association, played over the Stanton Heights course yesterday. J. J. Dillon, with 92-14—78, was second. Other scores follow:

C. K. Schmidt, 104-24—80; W. Tyrann, 92-12—80; L. P. Veth, 98-18—80; Ken Cowan, 99-16—83; Sh. McGeorge, 106-22—84; L. Bauer, 93-8—85; J. C. Jordan, 92-6—86; Jack Waddell, 104-22—86; G. L. Neff, 111-24—87; C. Whitcomb, 116-26—90; R. C. Gammon, 100-18—91.

H. S. Edwards finished 2 up in the match play against par competition which preceded the dinner and election of officers at the Pittsburgh Country Club. J. J. Parker finished second, 1 up.

Tee to Green

The Pittsburgh Field Club is to hold its formal opening of the clubhouse on Saturday night, May 7, the event being marked by a dinner dance. Mrs. J. Kennedy Irwin, chairman of the hospitality committee, has arranged for the club's first luncheon and bridge for Thursday, May 12. Saturday night dinner dances have been scheduled for May 21, June 11 and June 25.

The formal opening of the new Churchill Valley Golf Club, near Wilkinsburg, on Saturday, is expected to attract a big crowd. Jimmy O'Donnell, erstwhile Edgewood pro, who is to instruct at Churchill, says everything is in readiness for the event.

Jim Carroll, pro at Stanton Heights, has all the holes at that club are in fine shape, in spite of many changes last season.

The Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, will hold its first golf tourney at the Country Club of Pittsburgh on Monday, May 16. It has been jointly announced by Col. Franklin Blackstone, president, and Dr. H. R. Decker, chairman of the golf committee.

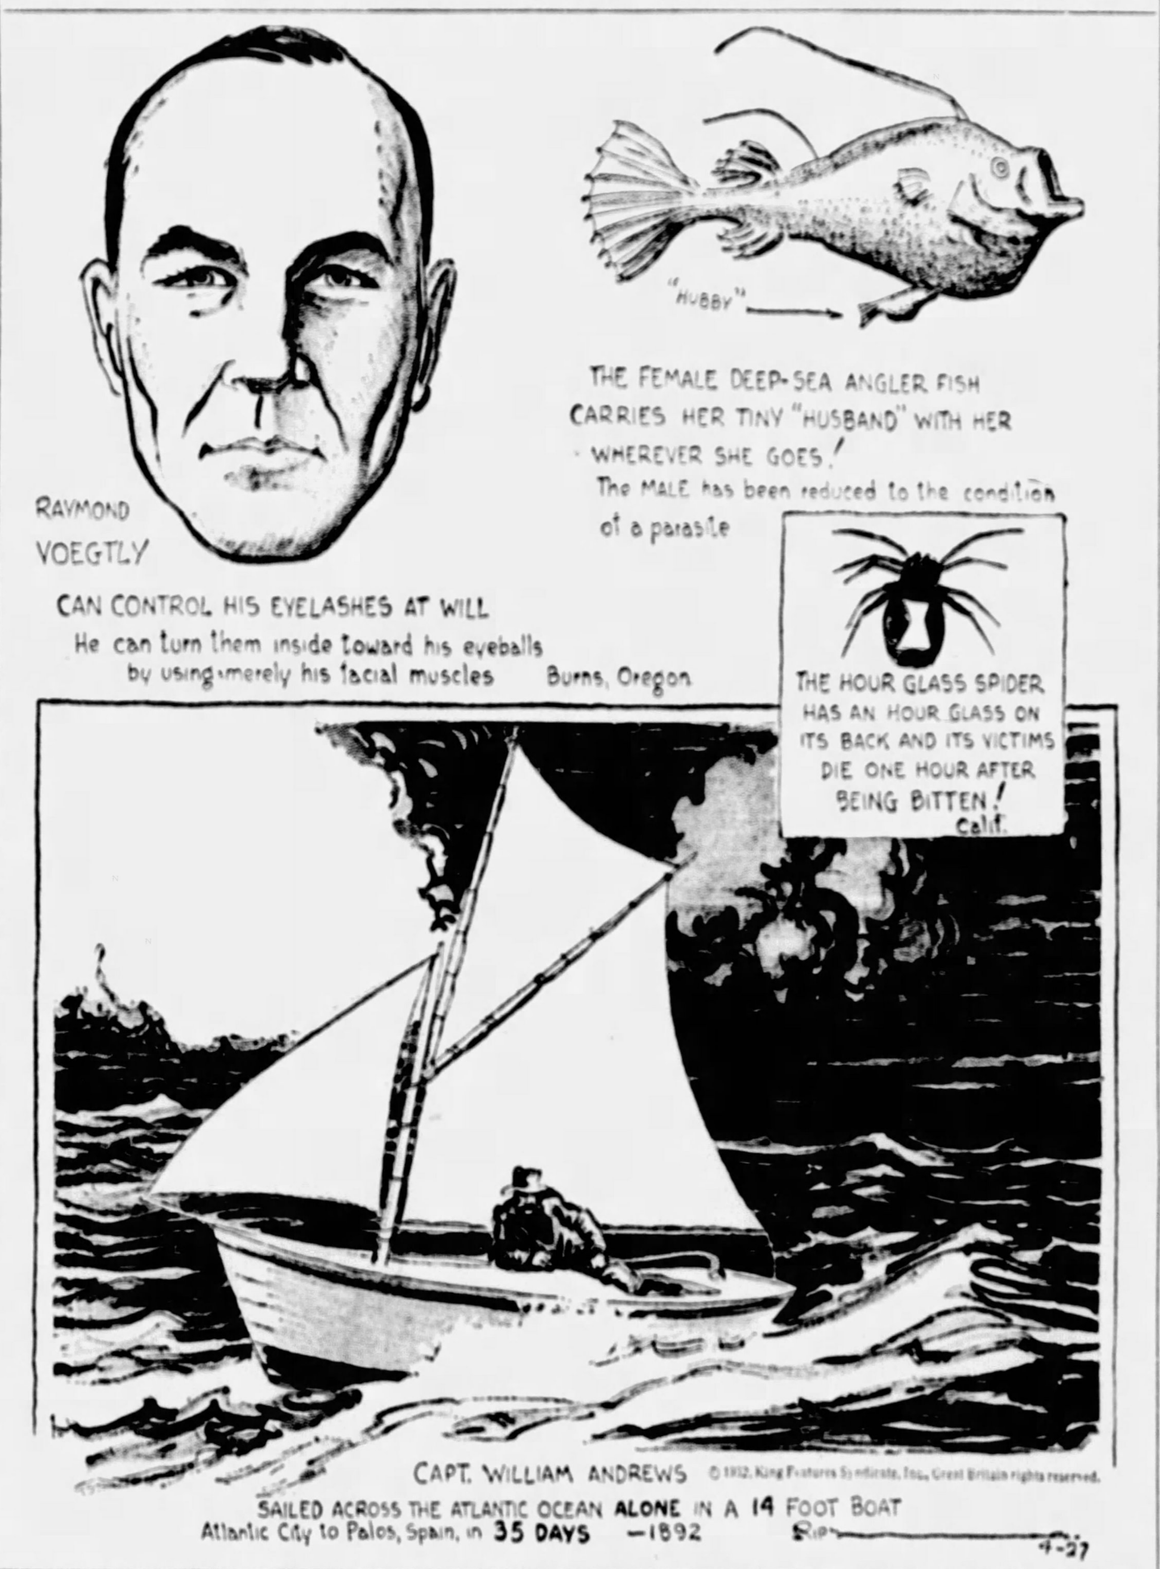
LONDOS VICTOR

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—Jim Londos, claimant of the world wrestling championship, defended his title claim in New York for the second time in as many nights when he threw Leo Pinetzki, giant Polish grappler, in 29:49 of the main bout at the New York Coliseum last night.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT — By RIPLEY

(Reg. by U. S. Patent Office)

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)



EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE CHURCH OF ETERNAL SILENCE—In the heart of London, facing Hyde Park, stands a little brick church called the Chapel of the Ascension. It was conceived by a London lady, who on her travels in Italy found comfort in the paintings which line the walls of the great Italian churches. The walls of the Chapel of the Ascension, a realization of the pious lady's vision, are decorated with paintings, illustrating themes from the Gospel. The church is constantly crowded with visitors and tourists, yet silence reigns supreme within. There are no sermons, no hymns, no organ, altar or baptismal font there. No confirmations, baptisms or weddings ever have been held there to distract the minds of those who prefer to worship in silence.

TOMORROW: AN 18 HOLES-IN-ONE SHOT.

BIG FIELD MAY GO IN DERBY

LOUISVILLE, April 27.—(AP.)—With 14 thoroughbreds listed as almost certain starters, and almost a score in the probable starter class, prospects are that a record field will face the barrier in the 1932 Kentucky Derby May 7.

The largest derby field in history went to the post in 1928, when 22 3-year-olds ran and Reigh Count triumphed. If as many start this year as their trainers say will start, the field will be an unwieldy one, but horse racing is uncertain at best and the next 10 days probably will change many calculations.

The almost certain starters include C. V. Whitney's Top Flight, the Loma stable's Tick On, and Shandon farms Burning Blaze, the winter book favorites. Leading Western candidates considered almost certain are the three D's stable's Liberty Limited and Col. E. R. Bradley's Brother Joe and Burgoo King.

Others in the "almost certain" class are R. M. Eastman's Cathop, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Curacao, the late Joseph Leiter's Prince Hotspur, the Northway stable's Gallant Sir, J. M. Parrish's Cold Check, M. L. Schwartz's Barcelona Pete, C. V. Whitney's Mad Frump, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepenfetchet.

Stranahan Annexes Old Dominion Medal

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 27.—(AP.)—The round of 72 scored Monday by R. A. Stranahan, of Toledo, O., stood up under the second day's challenge at the Cascades course here yesterday as the low qualifying round for the Old Dominion golf championship.

Reginald A. F. Loftus, of Chevy Chase, Washington, turned in a card of 41-37—78 as the best of the days efforts, tying with Fay Ingalls, of the Cascades Club, and Billy Howell, of Washington and Lee University, for second honors.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Ben Eastman is being pronounced by veteran track and field authorities as the greatest middle-distance runner of all times, as a result of his record-breaking feats in the quarter and half-mile events recently, and they look for him to clean up in the Olympic Games to be held in his native state, California, this summer. . . . His toughest opposition in the 400 and 800 meters races likely will come from two Britons, Lieut. G. Rampling and Tom Hampson . . . The bespectacled runner turned in a mark of 46 4-10 seconds for the quarter mile and of 1 minute 51 3-10 seconds for the half mile . . . Britain now holds the Olympic 400-meter championship which was snared by Douglas Lowe in both 1924 and 1928, and Hampson will try to retain it for his country . . . The 800 meters will be run two days before the 400 meters, which gives Lieut. Rampling first crack at Eastman.

Lou Terry

Joe Bush—Bullet Joe—former star pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics and for a time with the Pirates and other major league clubs, who managed the Allentown (Pa.) team to the Eastern League pennant last year, now is playing first base for an independent team in Reading, Pa., but plans to resume pitching when the weather gets warmer . . . Ernie Vavra, former local sandlot star, has just turned in his third straight pitching victory for New York University, and is a sensation in the Eastern collegiate ranks . . . He also plays a star game as a lineman for the Violet football team . . . Connie Mack, manager of the former world champion Philadelphia Athletics, who are having a tough time getting started after their defeat by the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series last fall, is disappointed in the work of Doc Cramer, his young outfielder . . . He says Cramer has the stuff to be one of the greatest stars, on a par with Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane, but lacks the ambition . . . He does everything easily and naturally, but so far has been unable to prod himself to the limit.

Lou Terry, the lightweight boxer, of St. Louis, who is here seeking matches, boasts quite a record . . . He has scored 28 knockouts, won 32 decisions, drawn in eight bouts, lost nine decisions and appeared in three no-decision bouts. . . . Among the men he has boxed are Jimmy Hackley, Roy Mitchell, Jack O'Keefe, Eddie Anderson, Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, Harry (Kid) Brown, Joe (Kid) Peck, Frankie Larrabee, Don Davis, Fay Kosky, Tony Escalante, Jimmy Dale, Mike Dundee, Tony Pelligrino, Hershie Wilson, Freddie Haverlak, Jimmy Borde, Buster Brown, Jackie Dugan, Pee Wee Kaiser, Davy Abad, Danny Delmont, Joe Ghnouley and Wesley Ramey.

For the first time in its four seasons, the Meyers Bowl will open its campaign with a "natural" bout when it presents the Tony Canzoneri-Battling Gizzy affair on May 23 . . . The first year, Benny Bass boxed Steve Smith, a setup; the second year, Vic Burrone was brought in to oppose Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, and proved nothing but a punching bag, and last year Ray Kiser was sent against Jack (Kid) Berg, former junior-welterweight champion, and was out-

U. S., CANADA DRAW MADE

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP.)—The names of blond Wilmer Allison, Texas tennis ace, and Marcel Rainville, of Canada, were matched by the draw to serve the opening shots of the North American Davis Cup match on the Chevy Chase courts here tomorrow.

President Hoover officiated at the ceremony on the south lawn of the White House, drawing from a gray slouch hat the names of the starting opponents.

Ellsworth Vines, top ranking American tennis star, and Dr. Jack Wright, veteran Canadian Davis Cupper, were matched next as opponents for the second singles battle opening day.

Although Frank X. Shields, suntanned from the early tennis campaigns, was in the audience of net stars from both Canada and the United States who clustered about the President during the draw, his name was not mentioned.

HORNSBY 36 TODAY

CHICAGO, April 27.—(INS.)—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs, is celebrating his 36th birthday anniversary today. The occasion also marked the 13th anniversary of the Rajah's entrance into major league baseball.

RACE TRACK PATRON DIES

NEW YORK, April 27.—(INS.)—Erastus Carpenter, 62, sportsman and race track patron, died yesterday.

SWETONIC SET TO HURL FOR CORSAIRS

CHICAGO, April 27.—The Pirates and Cubs today will attempt to windup what started to be a four-game series, but which will produce only two contests even in the event that this afternoon's scrap is staged. The two clubs were idle yesterday for the second day in succession, snow flurries and general cold weather caused the home management to skip the date.

The opposing managers this morning announced they would stand pat on their slab assignments. That means that Steve Swetonic will face Pat Malone. Steve is the same laddie-buck who conducted a shutout party at the expense of the Bruins while the teams were in training in California.

CUB STARS OUT

It is altogether likely that Manager Hornsby was glad to postpone the games when one considers the sad plight of his [illegible] due to injuries. TARTANS MOVE TO REDUCE GRIDIRON PRICES

PITT ATTITUDE SOUGHT; NEW TAX FACTOR

By JESS CARVER

The folks out at Carnegie Tech are in favor of lowering the prices of their football tickets for next fall. A session of the board in the Pitt Stadium about the Tartan gymnasium last night was a matter of secondary importance. It was a matter of secondary importance to the Skibo athletic council when the price of admission to Carnegie home games was discussed. No fixed decision was reached, however, it was learned today. The Skibo board will, it is understood, go on record for the reduction when it meets for the purpose next week. It will probably make a ruling for the entire season of games.

Inasmuch as the Tartans use the Pitt Stadium for their home contests the Pathers will have to enter into the agreement before the change can be affected. W. Dan Hanlon, Pitt's graduate manager of athletics, probably will be chief spokesman for the Panthers in lining up Stadium dates with Yale for an opening game for 1933 and could not be reached for a statement.

TO WITHHOLD LIST

The Tartans will offer a new list of admission prices until the new federal tax bill now under consideration in Washington is passed or rejected.

The athletic chiefs at Duquesne met tomorrow evening and according to Graduate Manager John Buchan the matter of reducing the price of admission to Duke games will be taken up at that time.

The Tennessee-Tech game may be the cut prices, but not in Minneapolis where good old Minnesota has been collecting $2.50 as a top for years and years and the boys will continue to lay that amount on the line for their duals this year. The athletic council decided to stand pat on their admissions yesterday.

The Tipoff

Hank Day, Washington's new head football coach, shocked his boys out of their wits yesterday as he sent them through their initial scrimmage of the spring practice grind. Hank, appeared in the drizzling storm as the Senators were, and ordered seven replacement and later on heavy work.

The former Washington High mentor expressed himself as being well pleased with the drill. The boys have yet to be keyed from

The game for the Pitt carnival the night 45th annual one, by the way promises to set a record despite the counter attraction offered by Pennsylvania with its scholastic relay event the same day. Events shifted to date from local meeting back on work. Last year the Lancaster meet was held May 7 with Pitt's affair coming May 8.

Durant to Drive In Hoosier Grind

INDIANAPOLIS, April 27 (AP)—Cliff Durant, wealthy sportsman, has been named driver of a car entered by Harry Hartz in the annual 500-mile automobile race here May 30.

In other years Durant has been a contender for racing honors, at one time having a five-car team on the track. He never has driven a winner and it was said he hired out to Hartz as a driver instead of having his own entry in the hope of changing his luck.

Hartz retired from active racing several years ago.

O'Conner to Referee National Soccer Final

Pat O'Conner, of the Western Pennsylvania Soccer Referees' Association, has been appointed to referee the final of the National Amateur Cup, featuring the Santa Christ, eleven of New Bedford, Mass., eastern champion, and the Cleveland Shamrocks, western champs, at Cleveland next Sunday afternoon.

The game originally was scheduled for May 8, but was moved forward to next Sunday.

O'Conner is the third member of the local body to be honored with a national amateur final. Tom Brass handled the Philadelphia-Chicago Swedes game at Chicago in 1924, and George Lumsden worked the Akron Goodyears-New Bedford Black Cats game at Akron in 1931.

COLUMBUS DROPS FOUR

COLUMBUS, O., April 27 (AP)—Re-signing of pitchers has been announced by President Max Pfeal, Columbus American Association baseball club. Hal Haid will be sent to Dayton of the Three-Eye League, Carl Lind to Jackson, another farmer with your Mike Ryba of the Southeastern loop will be inducted. Hal Haid will become a member of the Kokomo (Ind.) club in the New York-Pennsylvania circuit.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, beaten by Ted Yarosz and Champion Jackie Fields his last two times out, goes to the post again tonight after a bit of a layoff to determine if he still can make any of the welterweights jump when he cracks the whip. He's in with Davy Grove of the North Side at the Moose Temple, and Davy's no part of a set-up. He knows how to box and he can punch, and he's been gunning for a crack at someone with a reputation for some time. Jimmy will have to be able to fight in winning form or be prepared for the battle of his young life.

Jimmy Belmont

Carl Gross, Frank Klaus' heavyweight, damaged his left hand in training with Belmont and won't be able to oppose Tom Hanson, of Braddock, in the second bout, and Roy Jennings, of Homestead, has been engaged to take his place. Billy Flanagan, of Clearfield, meets Anson Green, of Homestead, in the semi-final, and Bobby Rowe, of the East End, and Sammy Asto, of Uniontown, box a return bout in the opener.

Fight Results

At Portland, Ore., Wildcat Carter defeated Eddie Ridenour, 6 rounds. Lee Page defeated Eddie Fox, 6 rounds.

At Los Angeles, Max Baer won by a technical knockout over Paul Swiderski, 7 rounds. Jean Ahern defeated Wally Fraser, 6 rounds.

At Trenton, Gorilla Jones defeated Young Terry, 12 rounds (N. B. A. middleweight championship bout). Dick Power knocked out Al Reed, 2 rounds.

At Des Moines, Eddie Anderson defeated Paul Wangley, 10 rounds. Mickey Genaro and Tony Legnont drew, 10 rounds.

At Indianapolis—Roy Wallace and Sammy Slaughter drew, 10 rounds. Lou Vine knocked out Harold Ferris, 6 rounds.

At Boston, Mickey Bishop defeated Dick Leonard, 10 rounds.

At Jacksonville, Fla., Chino Alvarez won by technical knockout over Jimmy Reed, 8 rounds.

At New York, Frankie Morris won by technical knockout over Johnny Rousseau, 8 rounds. Joe Rossi defeated Tommy Ando, 6 rounds.

Between Rounds

Tommy Loughran and Steve Hamas are in heavy training for their 10-round bout in Convention Hall, Philadelphia, one week from tonight.

Lou Terry, Howard Scott and Dave Barry, three St. Louis fighters here for engagements, will return home for battles on May 10 at St. Joseph, Mo., and come back here later. Terry will oppose Battling Clements. Barry meets Tommy Marson and Scott battles Steve Ketcher. All three are training at the Linwood gym and will be available for bouts here within the next week.

Madison Square Garden has not yet announced an attraction for next Tuesday, when it is slated to resume boxing, with a wrestling show following the next night.

Five of the six bouts at the Hamilton Arena Saturday night have been arranged. Lee Sala hooks Young Sarino in the main event. Jackie Wilson meets Johnny Cala, one Mose Butch is on with Frankie Tate, a Mexican of Cleveland. Billy Blood hooks Frankie Bauer, of Cleveland, and Tiger Joe Randall engages Barney Stevens, of Cleveland. The other bout will be closed today by Matchmaker Bill Dummer.

Ray Trambus, Rockford (Ill.) middleweight, is doing his training at the Pittsburgh Lyceum for his bout with Izzy Shade at Indianapolis next Tuesday night.

Mickey Burns, of Johnstown, boxes Nick Ellenwood, of Indianapolis, in the main bout of the first show of the year in Johnstown, at the Auditorium, under the promotion of Conney Martin, next Tuesday night. In three six-round preliminaries, Bunny Vaughn boxes Cass Rhodes, Joe Adams battles Charley Burns and Joe Incosky tangles with Jimmy Dean.

Nick Carano boxes Tony Vecchio and Georgie Tomosky meets Romeo Cano, 10 bouts at Morgantown, W. Va., next Monday night.

Joe Dubrasky reports he has Chuck Zelinski, Teddy Mack, Frankie Moran, Joey Angelo, Georgie Sotak and others in shape.

The Dick Evans-Jimmy Moore semi-final to the George Funks-Tuy Fuscell bout at Youngstown next Wednesday night is a 10-rounder, as is also a battle between Tony Robbins and Johnny Brooks. Steve Zonda meets Joe Martin in a four-round opener.

Chris Krake will box Steve Loppenchek, of the Wilson A. C., in the main bout of the amateur boxing show at the Pittsburgh Lyceum tomorrow night.

The Mosier Park outdoor arena manager went ahead to open the season on Thursday night, May 19, thus getting the jump on the Meyers Bowl by four nights.

Buck McClurean's contract with Ronnie Bontach expires tomorrow and he is all set to do business with Jack Barry, of Erie, as his new manager. Buck has been training hard for a month and is in good condition at 160 pounds.

Favorite Defeated In Handball Play

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—One favorite was eliminated in a surprising upset and two others were victorious last night in the National Senior A. A. U. four-wall handball championship play.

Herman Deorman, of Detroit, fell before John Dunwoodie, of New York, in a hard fought match. The scores were 7-21, 21-11, 21-9.

HE-MEN ASK US THIS QUESTION

● Here's a real bit of news we've never before disclosed—the answer to a question "heavy-bearded" men frequently ask. They want to know why no razor blade equals the double-edge Probak for shaving stubborn bristles smoothly. It's really very simple. We won't bore you with technical detail, but microscopic examination reveals this fact—Probak edges are entirely different from those of any other blade. They are especially honed for heavy duty service on tough bristles. This is the reason for Probak's popularity among regular men. Try Probak on our guarantee. We are sure you will like the way this blade feels as it shears wiry hair. If your satisfaction is not complete—return the package and unused blades to the store where purchased and get a full refund.

LEO CARROLL BALKS AT PAY CUT

DORMONT MAY HAVE TROUBLE SIGNING ACE

By TOM BIRKS

Despite the fact that Dormont is lining up its outfield and infield positions with little trouble, there is every indication that the City League champion of 1931 is having tough sledding getting the batterymen into line for the coming campaign. It seems evident that Manager Falconer is going to have trouble whipping Leo Carroll into line. Rumor has it that the club wants Leo to take a cut in salary. Leo, who depends upon his pitching arm for a living, does not show any inclination of accepting a reduced pay check.

CARROLL SLAB ACE

Carroll is without a doubt the pitching class of the loop and, without Iron Man Leo, it will be hard for the champions to repeat.

Carroll probably will play with Dormont, however, as long as Falconer wants him, because there seems to be an agreement between the managers not to dicker with or consider players of another club. The managers have been talking over this restriction agreement for a couple of weeks. It will operate where contracts are in existence, but its value in a loop of the semi-professional class is doubtful.

Business Manager Billy Nixon, of the Pittsburgh Crawfords, has signed an agreement with the Elks Club, of Sharon, for its field for all Sunday games on the Crawford schedule. The team also will play night baseball at the Youngstown Field when the home team is away.

TO MEET YANKEES

The Crawfords have their schedule well filled. On May 2, 3 and 4 they play the New York Negro Yankees in New York; May 5, at Vandergrift; May 6, Pittsburgh Collegians at Greenlee Field, and May 7 Dormont will be met.

The New Kensington Firemen will be back on the diamond this season with a good club. Games are wanted on a home and home basis. Managers should write R. McBride, 1627 Fourth avenue, New Kensington, Pa.

NET TOURNEY PLANS SET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The second annual Greensburg Country Club open net tourney will be featured on the clay courts of the G. C. C. over the week-end of Independence Day. According to announcement from authorities of the Westmoreland organization, the event will get under way on Friday, July 1, and will last to include Monday, the Fourth.

Success of the rather hastily arranged Greensburg conclave just after Labor Day last year prompted early action on the part of the ambitious Westmorelanders this spring in order that the choice holiday date might be landed without conflict with other district tournaments.

Edgar T. (Tack) Hammer, Westmoreland titleholder for lo! these many summers, is chairman of the court committee. Making up the racquet group with him are A. B. Kelly, Don Snyder and the Misses Helen Carson, Catherine Cole and Helen Shaner.

Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace and top ranking player of the Pittsburgh area, captured the 1931 Greensburg men's singles event after speedy final with Frank Broida, Harvard southpaw and twice winner of the Pittsburgh Public Parks crown.

Coach B. P. Hoover's promising Carnegie Tech tennis team opens 1932 hostilities today by invading the Bluff for fray with Grant Siverd's Dukes. The Hill-toppers, chastened by 9-0 defeat at the hands of the mighty Pitt array, will present a slightly altered line-up against the Tartans.

Suicide Attempt Of Duncan Fails

PARIS, April 27.—(INS.)—James H. (Jim) Duncan, American World War veteran and former holder of the world discus throwing record, passed a comfortable night following his attempt to commit suicide yesterday at Boulogne-Sur-Seine.

A friend visited him at a hospital today and reported that unless complications developed he would recover from the serious bullet wounds he inflicted.

John T. Taylor Discusses Amateur Athletics on WCAE

This is an Olympic year and the eyes of the entire sporting world are focused upon its amateur athletes.

What, then, could be more interesting than a radio program on this subject?

Tonight, at 7 o'clock, daylight saving time, John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., is the guest speaker of the weekly period of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE.

John T. Taylor

In an interview with Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph and master of ceremonies of these programs, the man who has guided the amateur athletic activities of the Pittsburgh district for the last quarter of a century discusses the chances of Pittsburgh's own stars in the trials and the games themselves. He also will carry his listeners back across the years and recall the champions of the past, travel the path of amateur athletics in Pittsburgh, tell what Pittsburgh and its sports lovers can do to help along the fight for clean and healthy athletics and speak on other kindred topics.

The Seals will bark 'n' everything. It's Amateur Athletics Night on the air, and a big one.

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson

CHAPTER XXIV.

The recent performance of Ben Eastman, the Stanford University junior, who broke the all-time amateur and professional record for the quarter and half miles, is an encouraging bit of news for America's chances in the Olympic 400 meters at Los Angeles this summer.

Although this 20-year-old youth showed great promise last year, when he equaled the 440-yard record of 37 and 2-5 seconds, very few thought him capable of improving that mark because of his unique style of running. And, now that he has knocked off a whole second from the record formerly held jointly by himself, Ted Meredith and Victor Williams, it looks to me as if he has struck a gait that this year will stamp him as the greatest middle-distance runner of all time.

HAS UNIQUE STYLE

This 6-foot, bespectacled blond has a style unlike any runner of modern times. He has a long, low, close-to-the-ground stride, which suggests a hip-roll similar to that used by heel-and-toe walkers, and he carries his arms rather high as they swing across in front of his body. This method of locomotion is not unlike that used by Dave Caldwell, former Cornell intercollegiate half-mile champion, but Eastman's style is even more economical in that he does not bounce as his foot hits the ground but seems to creep along in effortless rhythm. In Eastman's only eastern appearance, last year, he was beaten by Victor Williams, of the University of Southern California, at the intercollegiate championships in Philadelphia. In this race he forced Williams to the tape in the world record time of 47 and 2-5 seconds.

Three-quarters of an hour later, Eastman surprised the experts by winning the half-mile title in 1:54 1-3. This feat, in my opinion, indicated the probability that he would or could wipe off all the world record marks from 400 to 1,000 yards in the very near future should he choose to go after them.

His recent quarter and half miles bear out my thoughts and also supply for the United States an almost sure winner in the 400 meters or 800 meters, whichever event he may choose to run.

MAY CONFINE ACTIVITIES

Due to the strenuous caliber of the Olympic competition, in which four heats in the 400 and three heats in the 800 are required before a result is obtained—Eastman may confine his efforts to one race, or possibly the 400 meters and the 1,600-meter relay.

Although the Olympic Games are several months off, Eastman will have to be at his best to gain the laurels if what we hear of George Rampling, of Great Britain, is true.

Rampling easily has beaten the best of all the European runners, and, although his best time for the double furlong is only 48 seconds, he never was pressed to his limit except once in a relay race between Great Britain and Germany. In this race Rampling was timed in 46 3-5 seconds running the last leg of the relay—exactly the same time credited to Eastman on the day he made his world record for 440 yards.

FAVORITES WIN IN SCHOOL BATTLES

By JULIUS LEVIN

Favorites generally came striding through in yesterday's school diamond engagements, an almost full program of which was staged, despite the chilly weather. Schenley, defending champion in the City League, and McKeesport, 1931 ruler of the W. P. I. A. L., both came through with triumphs.

Schenley won an uninteresting tussle from Peabody in Section I of the City loop, 8 to 6, while Allegheny Vocational was checking Westinghouse, 8 to 3. In Section II, Oliver blanked Langley, 5-0. Canning pitching a five-hit game. The Langley-Allegheny game was postponed.

In the junior division, Washington Traders walloped Baxter, 13 to 4, and Gladstone defeated Herron Hill, 6-2.

McKeesport, with Bubrick again in fine form, trounced Edgewood, 15 to 2. Wilkinsburg defeated Rankin, 4 to 1, and Turtle Creek had little trouble in whipping Elizabeth, 8-1.

In a non-league fray, the Duke Preps won over Avalon, 16-0.

Peabody's links team took the lead in Section II of the Interscholastic Golf Conference by defeating Bellevue, 13 to 4, on the Highland course. Taylor Allderdice broke into the victory column by nosing out Sewickley, 9½ to 8½. Oliver broke into the competition and blanked Carrick, 18-0, and Wilkinsburg won over Arnold, 13 to 5.

RED SOX WIN OVER MACKS; YANKS COP

Associated Press.

Beaten in six of their last seven starts, the Philadelphia Athletics smarted today from the unkindest blow of all.

The Boston Red Sox, who in recent years have been just a warm-up for the American League champions, put on the finishing touches yesterday when they larruped Lefty Grove, 10 to 2, and sent the Mackmen into sixth place.

Such a thing is almost unprecedented since the Athletics started hitting the high spots three years ago. They trimmed the Sox 16 times last season in 20 engagements, Grove doing the honors three times, twice by the shutout route.

For five innings the glamorous Grove looked like his old self, allowing not a hit, but in the last four frames the Boston boys rattled the Shibe Park fences with 10 solid blows, including a home run by Earl Webb.

Ed Rommel hurled the last two innings for the Macks.

While the A's were suffering, the New York Yankees were busy moving into second place in the league standing with a 6-to-5 victory over the Washington Senators, the first meeting of the year between these rivals.

The Senators made an uphill battle to tie the count in the eighth after the Yanks had scored five runs off Alvin Crowder in the first two innings, but it was to no avail.

Kiski Golf Team Wins Over Dukes

Kiski's crack golf team experienced little difficulty in defeating the Duquesne University varsity squad yesterday in a match played over the Wildwood course. The prep school golfers won by a score of 11½ to 4½.

Bill Mercer, Kiski captain and champion, turned in a card of 39-40—79 for the best medal score of the day.

LET'S TALK ABOUT LOW PRICE -and HIGH QUALITY TOO

By all means, let's talk about price when we talk about automobiles. Let's give the price tag its place in the sun. But let's remember this vital fact—that although what we pay is important, it is less important than what we get for what we pay. ¶ Because Oldsmobile enjoys unusually high prestige among motorists generally . . . because owners have praised its fine qualities in such glowing terms . . . few people realize how moderate Oldsmobile prices really are. There are other cars that cost less, of course. There are many that cost more. But do you know how much Oldsmobile offers in out-and-out quality at the price? Have you compared its sturdy construction with that of other cars? Have you examined its features, its finish, its roomy and comfortable interiors? Have you driven the car and enjoyed its astonishing all-round performance? If not—come in now and get the facts. For in Oldsmobile you get low price and high quality too!

EVIL OF STOCK POOL POLICY SHOWN

Institutional Advertising Held Best Way to Widen Market for Securities

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
General Service

NEW YORK, April 27.—Stock market pools, which the Senate Banking Committee has decided to investigate, are merchandising vehicles for distributing securities.

The essential immorality of many such syndicates lies in the fact that they are silent toward stocks when they are ready to cheap but effusive concerning their virtues when stocks are dear.

Mr. Rukeyser

The sordid unfairness of Wall Street will be heightened when machinery for distributing securities is brought out in the open. Pools frequently exist exclusively by virtue of options granted by respectable investment bankers who are themselves interested in finding buyers for securities on their shelves.

The impulse to get distribution of securities may be entirely proper, but the technique for distribution is sometimes open to criticism.

ADVERTISE SELVES

I have long felt that with great corporations (through prestige institutional advertising) ought as a long-term policy to widen the market for their securities instead of relying on in-and-out brokers to do so.

This raises a very practical question of policy. Numerous corporations have in recent months accumulated in their treasury a supply of their own stock obtained through open market purchases designed to support the price of their stock. Without going into the propriety of such a practice, it will soon become a problem to redistribute such stock.

If the purpose was to support the price rather than to make a speculative profit, the management of such companies ought to consider the good will possibilities of redistributing such stock to the public as soon as it can do so without loss.

The conventional way to effect the redistribution would be to make covert deals either with pools or with established dealers, neither of which happen to be popular at this juncture. The responsibility for telling investors essential facts about such corporations which would condition buying attitudes would be more or less secretly delegated to brokers, dealers and stock manipulators.

HEALTHIER POLICY

Would it not be healthier for prime corporations to tell the authentic facts about their operations and resources, openly under their own name, instead of through uncontrollable outsiders?

Lest this proposal be considered visionary, it should be recalled that the Bell Telephone Securities Company, a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, carried on such a campaign successfully in behalf of the parent corporation. To the credit of this institution it should also be pointed out that it began to reach boom levels. General Motors and General Electric have also pioneered in institutional financial prestige advertising.

The advantage of keeping this responsibility within the control of the company itself lies in the fact that the corporation is a continuing agency. Whereas the outside brokers and manipulators tend to run to cover as soon as they have made their quick profit.

COTTON PRICES TAKE SPURT

NEW YORK, April 27.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 3 points on local and southern selling. July sold at 6.13.

The comparatively small offerings were absorbed at the initial prices however, and the market steadied up slightly after the call.

Trading continued quiet with the market ruling around 6.19 for July and 6.44 for October at the end of the first half hour, 2 to 3 to 4 point above yesterday's closing quotations.

The weekly weather report attracted some favorable comment but failed to bring in any selling of moment, and the market continued quiet and fairly steady later in the morning. At midday July was holding around 6.19 and October 6.43 or about 3 to 4 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES SAG

CHICAGO, April 27.—Grain prices sagged today after a show of firmness at the start. Traders took their cue chiefly from the action of securities and from apparent failure of frosts predicted in the Southwest and West. Opening unchanged to ⅛ higher, wheat afterward receded to below yesterday's finish. Corn started at ⅛ off to ⅛ up and subsequently declined.

Forecasts that wheat shipments from Argentina this week would be of large volume attracted some notice as a bear factor. Recent sharp setbacks in British exchange rates were also looked upon as a hindrance to export business from the United States, even though sterling today showed some recovery.

Helping however to steady the wheat market on price declines were estimates that wheat supplies available for export and for carryover in the four principal exporting countries and in Great Britain and afloat aggregated 831,000,000 bushels on April 1, compared with 863,000,000 the year previous.

RECEIVER GETS EATON TRUST

BALTIMORE, April 27.—(AP)—George L. Gugle of Columbus, O., was named receiver for Continental Shares, Inc., by Judge Arthur H. Stump in Circuit Court yesterday on a suit brought by Gugle as a stockholder and member of the stockholders' protective committee of the Investment Trust.

The suit claimed that Cyrus K. Eaton, Ohio capitalist, who has been chairman of the board of the Investment Trust, promoted the concern as part of his financial plans.

It alleged that Eaton had drawn $160,000 and that Otis & Co., brokerage firm in which he was interested, had drawn $108,000 through provisions for "founders' shares," and that through underwriting agreements Otis & Co. had been paid approximately $2,500,000 for underwriting trust shares.

Loans to holding and investment companies allegedly dominated by Eaton were among the complaints set forth in the suit.

Good Demand for Jersey Lessons Concern Over Dividend Outcome.

The market position of Standard Oil of New Jersey seems to have undergone a distinct change.

Good demand for Jersey made its appearance late yesterday, and it was evident that a heavy liquidation which had been going on for several days had pretty well run its course. At the same time it was plain that there was a good deal less concern over the outcome of the approaching dividend meeting than was the case recently. Due to heavy charge-offs it is expected the 1931 report will show up very disappointingly, but there is growing confidence that dividend action next week will be interpreted favorably. Placing of Socony-Vacuum on an 80-cent basis against $1 previously paid proved helpful to sentiment.

Many observers maintain that the market recently has been just the reverse of that in the summer of 1929. At that time there were indications of profit taking in a great number of stocks, but the most popular shares were being carried forward almost without interruption—the result was that the market continued to appear unusually strong. In recent weeks the issues which were popular with the bulls in 1929 have been meeting the greatest liquidation, while quiet buying has been reported in the other shares which suffered more severely in previous declines.

Indications are that Coca Cola's business held up comparatively well during the first quarter of the year. At any rate current estimates place probable net for the three months ended March 30 last at only slightly less than the $2.32 a share reported in the corresponding quarter last year. The smaller net expected to be shown this year will reflect principally it is believed, the absence of anything in the way of nonrecurring income such as was included in the first quarter statement for 1931.

Current estimates indicate that the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation fell considerably short of covering its dividend requirements in the first quarter of the year. The forthcoming report is expected to show net income for the March period was equivalent to between 20 and 25 cents a share, compared with net equivalent to 51 cents a share reported in the first quarter of 1931. The company voted a reduction in its dividend rate from $2.60 a share annually to a $2 basis at the February meeting.

Railroad shares were not particularly responsive to the good showing of the weekly figures on carloadings. The increase of 21,923 cars shown over the previous week was viewed as substantially better than called for seasonally. The best showing was made in miscellaneous loadings normally accepted as a reliable barometer of general business activity. Loadings in the various brackets making up the total were higher than in the previous week with the exception of merchandise and less than carload lots where the drop was slight.

Limiting transactions proved sufficient in the absence of nearby offerings of consequence to lift Delaware and Hudson for a sharp gain yesterday. The rise here was based presumably on expectations that directors of that company, meeting today, will vote to pay the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share. There had been considerable doubt on that stock right along by reason of the fact that the company reported net equivalent to only $6.27 a share for 1931.

OPPOSE NEW GRAIN RATES

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP)—New grain rates proposed for four principal wheat producing states of the nation and ranging 10 to 25 per cent higher than at present have brought quick protest from two states affected.

Fred Kiser of the Duluth (Minn.) Board of Trade declared the increased tariffs would "ruin" dealers there. At Kansas City, Charles W. Steiger, general counsel for the Kansas City Public Service Commission, estimated the increase would cost his state alone $3,000,000 a year and said in effect, it would benefit the trucking industry.

The new schedules were submitted yesterday by James F. Cherry, of the railroads' rate committee, at the commission's hearing here on grain and grain products tariffs, and among the requested increases the highest were for shipments between Kansas City and points in Kansas and Minneapolis and points in North Dakota.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Steel prices unchanged.

STEEL OUTPUT ON UPGRADE

NEW YORK, April 27.—Iron Age tomorrow will say: At a time when poor quarterly earnings statements have accentuated the gloom pervading the iron and steel industry, indications of better business are likely to be discounted. Nevertheless the immediate outlook is for further improvement, although the extent of that betterment will depend in the last analysis, on public confidence, as reflected in finance and in consumer buying.

The upward trend in automobile production, slow as it is, is having its effect on the operations of mills, foundries and parts manufacturers. Steel ingot production now averages 23 per cent of capacity, compared with 22½ per cent in the preceding week and 21 per cent two weeks ago.

Further expansion of motor car output next month is a certainty, and it now seems probable that the increased flow of business from that quarter will be supplemented by liberal lettings of structural steel, mainly for public works.

The plate market, which has been exceedingly quiet, is featured by the appearance of a call for bids in June on 50,000 tons for the Hoover dam.

Heavy losses in the first quarter have again focused attention on costs and a second wage cut now seems inevitable, much as they would like to avoid it. The chief consideration deterring such action is the fear that what would be saved in wages might be lost in lower prices.

RAILROAD EARNINGS

Nine of the first 26 railroads to report March results showed increases in net railway operating income over March 1931, suggesting a continuance of the trend shown in February, when many of the carriers made better showings in operating results than in the like 1931 month. Of the first 26 roads reporting for February nine also showed higher net railway operating income than for February, 1931.

MARKET MOVES CAUTIOUSLY HIGHER

Support Appears in Steel And General Motors at Lows; Rails Stage Rally

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP.)—The stock market was inclined to venture cautiously higher in another session of light trading today.

The list pushed up a point or two at the start, then relinquished its gain during the middle of the morning. Appearance of support for United States Steel and General Motors at the bear market lows was encouraging, however, and rails led another little rally after midday.

The dividend and earnings news on United States Steel appeared to have been largely discounted. That issue sagged ⅝ to 28¼, then recovered to above 29. Miscellaneous issues advancing 1 to 2 points after midday included Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Pennsylvania, American Telephone, North American, Pacific Gas, Allied Chemical, Drug, Air Reduction, American Tobacco "B," Liggett and Myers "B," Corn Products, Borden, Standard of New Jersey and American Can, while Delaware and Hudson, United States Steel preferred sold off 2 points, despite ordering of regular dividend on that issue, but recovered later.

Rails were apparently helped by ordering of the regular dividend of $2.25 by Delaware and Hudson, and continuance into March of the slight improvement in railways earnings in February. Roughly a third of the roads which have thus far reported net operating income for March showed gains over the same month of last year, although many of the carriers are still failing to earn fixed charges.

The mid-week business statistics made a somewhat mixed showing. The electric power production figures for the week ended April 23 showed a drop of 12.3 per cent, against 9.8 per cent in the previous week, and the largest comparative decline so far this year. It was notable, however, that there was a sharp gain in power consumption in the like week a year ago, in contrast to moderate decline in the preceding two years.

The Iron Age weekly survey tended to counterbalance the adverse effects of the omissons of common dividends by United States Steel and Inland Steel, reporting ingot output at 23 per cent of capacity, against 22½ in the previous week, and adding that the immediate outlook was for further improvement.

"American Metal Market," however, was somewhat gloomy, stating that the steel purchases by Ford Motor Company "are commonly exaggerated." Little interest was manifested in Bethlehem Steel's directors' meeting tomorrow. The common dividend has already been omitted, and the management has stated that it will recommend continuance of the preferred, so the meeting was expected to bring forth little save an unfavorable earnings report for the quarter. The market had been prepared for the Studebaker dividend omission.

P. R. R. DEFERS DIVIDEND

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad today decided to defer consideration of a dividend at this time.

Three months ago the Pennsylvania reduced its quarterly dividend to 50 cents a share.

The action did not come as a surprise as a note of warning had been sounded by directors following the January meeting when they announced "that in view of continued unfavorable conditions of railroad earnings, it is evident that the payment of dividends can not continue unless there is a marked increase in the company's income."

Dividend payments on the stock have been gradually reduced since the June 1931, meeting, at which time the quarterly rate was cut from $1 to 75 cents. Directors again cut the rate when they declared a payment of 50 cents a share.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—Total loaded cars handled by Pennsylvania Railroad during the week ended April 23 amounted to 90,665, comparing with 88,675 a week previous and 120,311 a year ago. Loadings from January 1 totaled 1,517,239 cars, against 1,948,945 in the like period of 1931.

She Didn't Sell; Called 'Sucker;' Is Indignant

By B. C. FORBES

A woman just telephoned me "I'm indignant. I'm so mad I can't contain myself. My family have been people of wealth. I inherited a large quantity of securities. I regarded them as investments. I held on to them.

Mr. Forbes

"And what do you think? Last night on the radio ——— called those of us who hadn't sold out our securities 'suckers.' That's exactly the word he used.

"To be called a 'sucker' because I didn't lose faith completely in the United States and sell the country short is too, too much. It's bad enough to see one's securities go down and down and to have one's income shrink and shrink. It's bad enough to waken up and discover that men who took leadership in finance and business and who reached out and grabbed control of our corporations, sold out on us. But to be told we were suckers for not losing faith entirely in this country is insulting beyond bearance.

"I'm not a red, naturally. But I'm beginning to see red. It's galling the way owners of securities have been ignobly betrayed by those who have been running our big businesses.

"I hope that the Senate will at least show them up—reveal them in their true colors. They shouldn't be allowed to get away with betraying the public."

THAT PROTEST, warm though it is, is as ice contrasted with some received. My very earnest advice to influential directors and executives of companies that got money from the public is:

"If you sold out on the public, don't delay another day in starting to reacquire a decent amount of stock in companies you are paid to help run. Get your house in order lest a showdown be forced."

Incidentally, I am told that some of my financial and corporate friends are very "mad" because of things I have recently written. They're welcome! If their record be clean, if their record be such that they are quite willing to have it bared to the public there's no occasion for their feeling furious. That the black sheep among them are incensed, I interpret as a compliment!

It is perhaps not astonishing that the guilty ones cannot realize that in writing as I have been writing I have been earnestly endeavoring to render genuine service and to encourage the bringing about of less ugly and ominous conditions. My purpose is not recrimination but rectification.

Any leader incapable to grasp the urgent need for rectification isn't fit for leadership, isn't fit either to be a director of a responsible executive of enterprises the public have financed.

JAMES R. BARKLEY, Iowa attorney, writes:

"I saw a merchant yesterday buying eggs from a farmer at eight cents per dozen, strictly fresh. Other farm products are on the same scale. The farmer's machinery is worn out, his furniture and carpets are at a state of disintegration. Here is a vast potential market if money was reflated enough to restore confidence."

Anti-deflation measures have at last been instituted. They should shortly begin to bear very valuable widespread fruit.

Low Production Causes Drop in Steel Earnings And Dividend Omission

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE TARDY DEVELOPMENT of automobile buying of steel products, the current low rate of output and the uncertainties about future production were the factors responsible for the omission of common dividends by the United States Steel Corporation and Inland Steel Corporation and a reduction in the preferred dividend of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

The sales drives undertaken by the leading automobile producers gave the steel industry its one hope for a recovery in business during the spring months. Up to the present time this hope has not materialized in the form of any appreciable increase in actual specifications for the shipment of steel. Ford has gotten production of his eight-cylinder motors under way and will increase the output of his new models. This will give some help to the industry. Beyond a moderate gain to be based on this, the steel makers have little grounds for the belief that their sales and output will advance much above the present level of 21 per cent of capacity during the summer months.

A firm stand of prices is the only favorable factor in the steel industry today. But this merely indicates that future statements will get no worse. United States Steel, Inland Steel, Jones & Laughlin Steel, Republic Steel and Gulf States Steel all have reported losses for the first quarter of 1932. So far as is known at present, National Steel will be the only major company to report a moderate profit for the three months.

Steel Passes Dividend And Shows Greater Loss

UNITED STATES Steel Corporation reported a net loss of $13,218,549 for the first quarter of the year. This compared with a loss of $4,376,754 in the fourth quarter of 1931 and with a net profit of $6,765,067 or 5 cents a share on the common stock in the first quarter of 1931. Directors decided to omit the quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock but declared the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock.

The results reported by the United States Steel Corporation have been representative of the income accounts of the other large steel companies which have published their reports up to the present time. Greater losses were shown in the first quarter of this year than in the fourth quarter of last year.

Jones & Laughlin showed a loss for the first quarter of the year of $2,399,089. This compared with a loss of $1,549,948 in the fourth quarter of 1931 and with a loss of $190,982 in the first quarter of 1931. Directors reduced the quarterly dividend on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock from $1.75 a share to $1 a share.

Inland Reports Greater Loss for Quarter

INLAND STEEL reported a loss of $820,541 for the first quarter. This compared with a fourth quarter loss of $233,196 and a profit of $633,873 or 52 cents a share in the first quarter. Directors omitted the dividend on the common stock. Three months ago the rate was cut to 25 cents quarterly from 50 cents quarterly.

Following the trend of the other companies, Republic Steel Corporation showed a loss of $2,476,292 for the first quarter as compared with a loss of $1,692,593 a year ago.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Colt Learns That Christine Was Left a Fortune By Her Father

CHAPTER XVIII

"Had Christine any private income?" Thatcher Colt asked Mrs. Carewe.

"Oh, yes, she was rather wealthy in her own right—that is to say, I believe she will be—I mean she would have been in two more months."

"She was coming into an inheritance?"

"Yes—of about a million dollars, I believe. There was something about her father having left her money of which she was to come in full possession when she was 23 years old."

Now Colt's line of questions swerved sharply.

"Do you know of any love affairs?"

"None."

"She had admirers——"

"Yes. But I think she took none of them seriously—that is what she always told me."

"Was this because of a disappointment in love?"

"I know nothing about that. She did not confide in me."

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," resumed Colt, "I want to ask you if you know of any person who would have any reason to wish for the death of Lola or of Christine—or who would benefit from their deaths in any way?"

"Absolutely none," declared old Mrs. Carewe.

"Who will get Lola's inheritance now?"

The mother shook her head unhappily and supposed she would, but she did not know. And she knew nothing of Christine's affairs.

TELLS ABOUT QUARREL

The old woman gave Colt a quick, uncertain glance, then her eyelids covered a tell-tale expression and her fingers twitched at her handkerchief.

"No—not really," she sighed at last.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

"As a matter of fact, didn't she quarrel with you only this afternoon?"

The old lady's eyes opened brightly and she nodded her head vigorously.

"Oh—that! I suppose Eunice heard. Well—we did have a tiff. But it amounted to nothing. Christine thought Lola was investing some money in a wrong way. But I didn't know anything about it. Come to think of it, Christine made a remark that seems queer—now! I told her not to worry me about her money; she would have to see Lola about it. And she said something about she would—if Lola lived that long."

"Was that all?"

Synopsis

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box found outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to the young man whose photograph is found in Lola's room, and whose identity Lola had refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil." At the mention of "Basil," Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, becomes hysterical. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confesses she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edward, in Rochester.

Now Go On

Yes. She got to crying and went in her room and shut the door. After a while she came out and apologized and we kissed and made it up.

"Know of any other quarrels that might lead us anywhere?"

"Not a quarrel — I know something but well—it is so trifling—"

"What is it?" insisted Dougherty. "You must tell us everything."

"All right—it is true that Christine took a violent dislike to our butler. But Chang is a harmless person—he has been with us for years."

AFRAID OF SERVANT

"Why did Christine dislike your Chinaman?"

"He frightened her. She thought he was—impertinent in the way he watched her."

"She was afraid of him?"

"Yes, frankly—she was. But that was foolishness."

Colt brushed aside her comments.

"Now there remains what to me seems a difficult point," resumed Colt. "Lola was found wearing a flannel bathrobe. Do you know if it was hers?"

"Yes—she always liked it."

"Did she wear it often?"

"Whenever she felt chilly."

Colt nodded thoughtfully, but he asked no more questions. Promising Mrs. Carewe that she would be under constant guard, he bade her a comforting good-night. When we reached the living room Colt and Dr. Mullooler conferred in low tones. Then the medical examiner went the way of his two canvassers—out of the penthouse and down to the morgue.

"Chief," said Inspector Flynn from the open door of the guest room where Lola had died, "Adams and Thompson are here—with their apparatus."

With some amusement I observed District Attorney Dougherty's glee at this newest development: two young detectives from headquarters, each armed with, of all things in the world, a vacuum cleaner! They were here at Thatcher Colt's special request—operators of machines of vast importance to the police, although the public has little suspicion of how valuable such an instrument can be in solving a murder.

"Get everything ready," ordered Colt crisply. "I am convinced that you boys can help us find what we need to get at the bottom of this baffling business."

Flushed at Colt's compliment the two detectives began to make ready their machines. Meanwhile Colt went to the telephone and asked for long distance. In an incredibly short while he was speaking to Capt. Wagner, head of the Rochester detective department.

"Hello, Captain. I need your help in a hurry. I want to find a man named Edgar Quires. He lives on Onondaga avenue——"

At the other end of the wire, Capt. Wagner had already reached for the telephone book, and as Colt finished, he had his finger on the listing.

"Right, Mr. Colt. I have the address before me."

"Will you send a man right out there? Ask Quires and his wife if she's there. To go to headquarters with you. Then to call this number from your office—Plaza 3-7362—that's right, and then will you keep an eye on Quires while I break a piece of news to him over the phone. See now he acts. Thanks, Captain!"

In preparing this watch-trap over Christine's brother in Rochester, Colt was simply following the old department maxim of taking nothing for granted and everything for possible. He knew that Christine Quires had been unhappy in her brother's home. More, he knew that she was the heiress to a fortune which probably passed to her brother when she died. Her brother's reaction to Christine's death might show something.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Each of the young detectives had a vacuum cleaner.

Madge Hurries to Relieve Lillian of Tasks

I was so spent with fatigue that I made no objections to Dicky's insistence that I go directly to sleep while he did sentry-go. I was almost too sleepy to thank him and I must have been fast asleep before he left the room, for I remember nothing of his going.

It was well in the afternoon when I awoke and, when I realized how long I had slept, I sprang up with a sense of guilt. For I remembered the dark circles under Lillian's eyes and the deeply etched lines of fatigue in her face, which I had noted after I had parted from her after our midnight coffee. I had told her that when I awakened I would take her place as "errand girl" for the improvised hospital room where the wounded Chinese lay under Katherine's care. She had refused to let me take her place until I "had had my sleep out." But I was deeply chagrined that it had taken me so long to accomplish that physical feat.

I dashed through my shower and dressing in record-breaking time and hurried down to the living room where I knew Lillian was generally to be found at her self-imposed tasks.

She was not there when I entered the room, but it was only a few seconds later when she came in, and though she was making a palpable effort to be cheerfully nonchalant, every line of her face and body spelled fatigue. But her greeting was characteristic in its solicitude for me.

"What are you doing down this early?" she demanded. "I thought I told you to get your sleep out."

ANOTHER BARGAIN

Did you think it was necessary to sleep round the clock in order to accomplish that little feat?" I retorted. "I did not open my eyes from the time I climbed into my bed until I awakened a few minutes ago. I have had all the sleep I can use for the next 48 hours, and I'm now ready to see that you get a dose of your own medicine, so come along up to your room with me while I put you to bed."

She flashed her gamin-like grin at me.

"Just a sec," she said. "Have you had any breakfast?"

"To quote your young daughter," I retorted smiling, "What has that to do with the price of fried onions?"

"Everything," she answered. "Incidentally, I happen to know my onions, fried and creamed, as far as this stunt is concerned. You're not ready to do efficient service on this party till you've been properly fed."

"Very well." I gave as close an imitation as I could of her manner when she sent me to bed. "I will make a bargain with you. I will go and get some breakfast, if you will promise on your honor that you will go straight to bed and to sleep when I come back."

"With one amendment, you have the pledge," she said. "We can't leave them in there"—she gestured toward the library where the wounded Chinese lay—"without 'an errand girl' on the job. I'll stay here while you get something to eat. Then you come back, I'll slip off the knapsack and attach it to your shoulders. Is it a go?"

KATIE RESENTFUL

"What else can it be when you're at the helm?" I answered with a smile that held a soupçon of irritation because Lillian so rarely permits anyone to make any sort of a decision for her or upon any undertaking in which she is engaged.

"I know," she said with a rueful grin. "I fawncy I do rather like to be the 'bride at the wedding and the corpse at the funeral' but I just can't help it."

"Who wants you to help it?" I queried. "Not I. Be little Casabianca on the burning deck and see if I care."

I went to the kitchen, where I found Katie ironing linen.

"Don't stop, Katie," I said. "I'll get something for myself."

She quickly rolled up the linen lunch cloth she had unfolded and thrust it back into the basket at her side. Then she pulled the plug from her iron and faced me with arms akimbo, a ludicrous familiar gesture.

"Vot matter mit you?" she demanded. "You seek of your poor Katie's cooking? Eef dots vot de matter mit you, me, I tink I better find some place vere my mistress like my cooking."

Her manner while not exactly truculent was distinctly resentful and her eyes were clouded. I saw that I had wounded my temperamental little maid and that I must make quick amends.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Evelyn Hughs, that talented youngster who has proved such a success with the children of the Harris (Downtown) chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, is 12 years old and attends Saint Marys School, where she is in the sixth grade.

Evelyn Hughs.

Mrs. Mary Hughs, Evelyn's mother, speaking of the numerous talents Evelyn has, said: "Aside from dancing, Evelyn plays the piano, and she has quite a reputation at school as an artist. In fact, in each of the classrooms of St. Mary's school you will find one of Evelyn's drawings. And for cooking, I don't think that there is a thing that she can't cook.

"Evelyn has been attending the Mamie Barth School of Dancing for the past two years," Mrs. Hughs continued, "and along with all the work that she does at home, and attending dancing school three days a week, she is one of the honor students of St. Mary's. One thing that I'm very proud of is the fact that I have never had to say a reproving word to her in my life. We're just 'pals'."

MODEL YOUNGSTER

Evelyn is just one of the many hundreds of model youngsters that are members of the Sun-Telegraph - Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, which meets every Saturday morning at 17 of the Warner Theaters to enjoy good clean wholesome fun and entertainment.

If you are not a member of this organization, send your name and address, name of your parents, school you attend, together with the date and year of your birth, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Pittsburgh Sun - Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

Of course, every member of the club knows, "Uncle Bob and Betty," those two lovable characters that read for you and all the other big and little grown-ups the Sun-Telegraph comics every Tuesday and Thursday at 6 p. m. and on Sunday at 12:30 noon over Radio Station WCAE. Well next Sunday, they will read you the comics at 12 noon instead of 12:30. Remember to tell your mother or dad about the change of time, so you won't miss "Uncle Bob and Betty," as they are honorary members of your club. Next Sunday, then, Radio Station WCAE, 12 o'clock noon for "Uncle Bob and Betty."

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls who are members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club and are celebrating birthdays today:

Safe Pleasant Way To Lose Fat

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last you for 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—very little on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose weight for ever and will also know that the 6 salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

To take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY take Kruschen ever; morning—don't worry—it's the SAFE way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any druggists in the world and if the results of one bottle doesn't delight you—return the empty bottle to us and we will refund your money. Kruschen Salts.

Don't let them count you out!

a "run-down" body can't stand up under work and worry

A cheerful helper is not enough — not if you are "run-down" physically

"Mother, I do wish you were well and strong . . . you always look tired."

It isn't fair to expect one to like work or to be happy when in a "run-down" condition.

Ordinarily you don't need to go to bed or to a distant resort to regain your strength. Usually S.S.S. will do it right at home and while you are up and going.

If you require a tonic you should by all means try S.S.S.—this long established medicine acts by stimulating the secretions of the stomach . . . reviving the appetite . . . aiding digestion . . . regenerating hemoglobin . . . restoring the red-blood-cells—and builds greater resistance against infection and disease.

Try it yourself. Get S.S.S. from any drug store. In two sizes: regular and double—the latter is more economical and is sufficient for a two weeks' treatment. S.S.S. may be the means of bringing better health and happiness to you.

McGovern Unmasks

The People Did Not Think They Were Voting for a Spoilsman as County Commissioner.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern's announcement that all county employes who served under the old regime except a few soldiers, widows and persons in sight of a pension are to be discharged comes as a shock. He frankly says he wants their jobs for his political supporters, thus revealing himself as a spoilsman.

McGovern says his election was a mandate to clean out the Courthouse. It is true the people desired the new Board of Commissioners to dismiss incompetent and corrupt officials and those who had participated in the sins of the old board. But it was far from the intention of the people to vote faithful laborers and clerks out of their jobs.

On the contrary it was urged in McGovern's behalf that his election would deal a blow to the spoils system, protect honest and hard working employes from dismissal except for just cause, and make it unnecessary for them to engage in political activities.

Misgivings were aroused by the recent disclosure that Dr. John R. Conover, after many years of good service, was removed as county medical director by Gov. Pinchot at McGovern's request, to make a place for McGovern's nephew; but it was scarcely imagined that the chairman of the County Commissioners would stoop so far, in his lust for patronage, as to take away the jobs of an army of laborers and other small jobholders.

McGovern, the spoilsman, is not the man for whom the people thought they were voting.

Name Them

Proceedings Against Lawyers Accused as Shysters Should Be Open and Aboveboard.

The Allegheny County Bar Association is engaged in praiseworthy work in its campaign to free the legal profession from "ambulance chasers" and other shysters. And the Court of Common Pleas deserves commendation for ordering disbarment proceedings against the accused. But there is one respect in which the action is lacking, and that is in the secrecy which surrounds the identity of the defendants.

It is to be presumed the Bar Association would not have proceeded to the lengths that it has unless convinced of the guilt of those whom it charges with unethical practices. Disbarment proceedings hardly would be brought if the merit of the case were in doubt. Why, then, should not the proceedings be conducted in an open and aboveboard manner? Let the names of the defendants be disclosed.

Gossip and rumor thrive on secrecy, and so long as the names of the accused are withheld from the public suspicion will fall on a multitude of attorneys who are probably innocent.

Better let the facts be known.

A Good Suggestion

Removal of Rubbish from Vacant Lots Would Go a Long Way Towards Beautifying the City.

City Council has received a good suggestion in a letter from a citizen calling attention to the untidy appearance of many vacant lots and requesting that the rubbish be removed.

Many a neighborhood is marred by the condition of unoccupied land which is used as a dumping place for tin cans, pieces of paper, and odds and ends of other debris. In some vacant lots one can even find the skeletons of old automobiles.

This is the first of two "Clean-Up Weeks," and the owners of the untidy lots could observe it in no better way than by removing the rubbish. If the owners of the property are delinquent, the people of the neighborhood might do the work. The letter to Council proposes another alternative—that the city have its laborers do the job, then charge the property owners for the service.

Cleaning up vacant lots would go a long way towards making Pittsburgh more attractive.

Down the River

Many Who Think They Would Like to Drift to New Orleans would not Enjoy the Experience.

The Sun-Telegraph printed yesterday an interesting picture of two girls, wearing hiking boots and breeches, and seated in a skiff, which they bought here and in which they propose to drift down the river to New Orleans. The girls looked happy, and we suppose thousands who saw the picture envied them the journey on which they were setting out.

For the desire to drift down the river to New Orleans is one of the commonest ambitions in Pittsburgh. Nearly every boy who grows up here and who has the spirit of adventure has given it some thought. It is a feat which sometimes attracts people from other parts of the country. A University of Wisconsin professor made the journey and wrote a book about it.

It is probably just as well that all who would like to take the trip in this way do not have the opportunity. The experience, for most, would not be as enjoyable as they anticipate. There would be hardships. There would be disillusionment.

Fatal Speedways

Straight Stretches of Rural Road Are Not the Safest for Automobile Drivers.

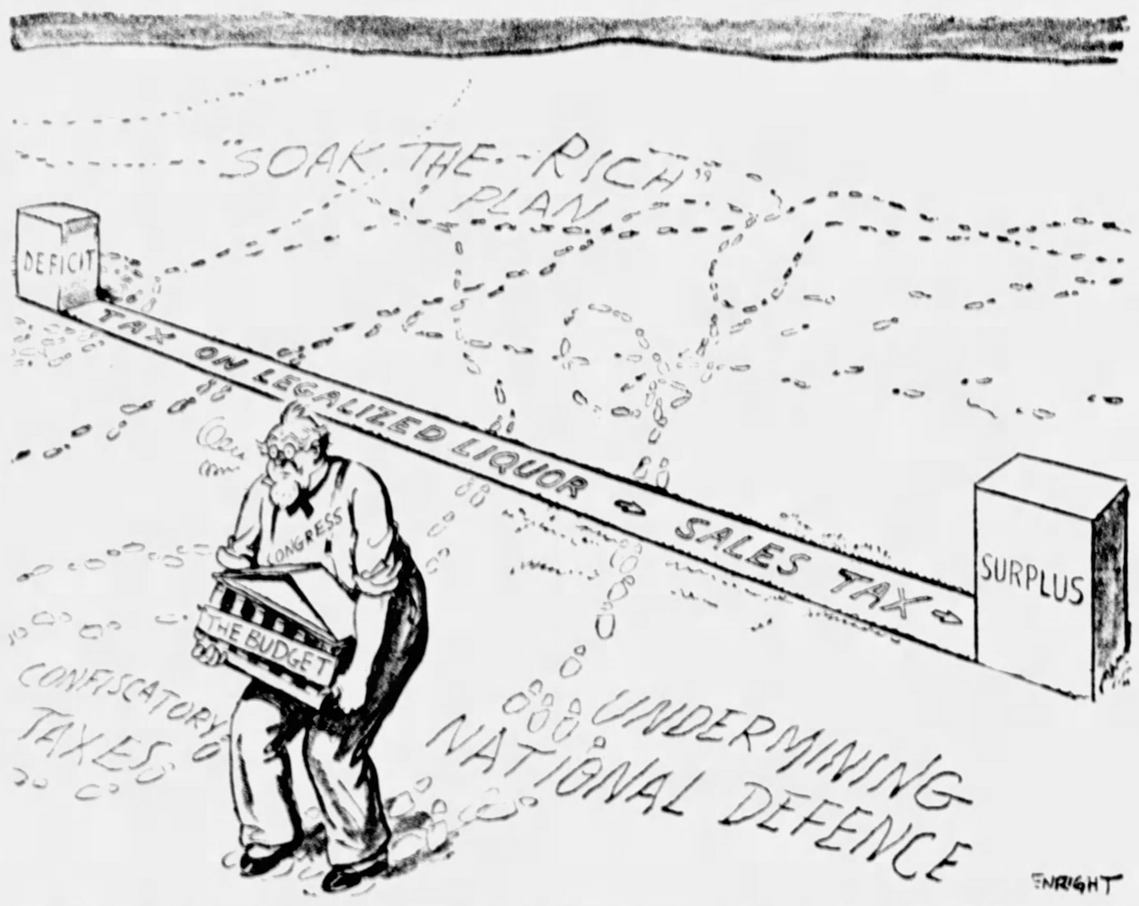
Some curious facts that would scarcely be expected are to be found in the state highway patrol's report on automobile accidents in Pennsylvania during the first three months of the year. The accidents numbered 9,542, as against 9,815 in the first three months of 1931; but this year's mishaps resulted in 457 deaths, as compared with 399 in the corresponding period last year.

Perhaps the most astonishing feature of the analysis of accidents is that the largest number of fatalities occurred on straight stretches of rural road.

Speed is the principal temptation that autoists should avoid; for it caused more deaths during the quarter than anything else—more than driving on the wrong side of the road, more than being forced off the road, more than "cutting in," more than driving through a stop signal.

The Bewildered Budget Balancer

(Copyright, 1932.)



Congress, bewildered by demagogic blasts from the Jackass Rabbit brand of "statesmen," wanders about in the maze of the deficit forgetting for the time that a "STRAIGHT LINE IS STILL THE SHORTEST DISTANCE BETWEEN TWO POINTS." Artist Enright makes that clear in his picture editorial above.

Seventeen foreign nations find the safe, sane, certain, LEAST BURDENSOME OF ALL SALES TAX the answer to their revenue-raising problems. This with a recovery of the thousands of millions of dollars going to waste in the UNTAXED liquor traffic would soon solve the budget-balancing problem. Will Congress ever turn a deaf ear to the demagogues?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 27.—What was once the splendor of the New York cabaret has dwindled into dime and two-bit entertainment. Down on the Bowery, one cellar place sought uptown customers with a 10 cent floor show. One of the most successful haciendas of 10 years ago is a penny dance hall.

Broadway, long a lane of cabarets, now tries to lure the yokels with the catch-penny devices of the street carnival. They range in price from a dime to a quarter. Corner stores that would, in good times, rent for $25,000 a year, are now short leased by side show exhibitors.

There are risque art salons, strong men and sex lecturers who sell tracts. Even a midnight cooch show a stone's throw from Times Square tried to catch late wayfarers for several weeks. Two souvenir shops have a "private room" for pornographic pictures.

The other evening in a five-block walk from the Capitol Theater I was solicited twice by a furtive gentleman and an equally furtive lady whose whispered invitations had the innuendos of Paris peep show guides. All I needed to do was to follow them.

After all, such exhibits are only the cabaret and night club in more aggravating form. They were growing dirtier and more brazen each season. A constant impertinence from the time a Tarzan snatched your hat until the waiter sneered at your tip.

Only a nation in the flush of an amazing prosperity and looking for a new thrill, no matter the cost, would have stood for such robbery. Calling customers "suckers" was, of course, a jovial pleasantry of Texas Guinan. But way down deep Tex knew her jest was truth.

As the cabarets died in New York so have they become almost entirely extinct in all world capitals. Berlin, Paris, London, Vienna and, of course, Shanghai offer the same shuttered bleakness. Easy money may bring them back. But that seems a long way off.

My nocturnal pilgrimages have shrunk to a single night out a year. This usually follows the Dutch Treat Show, and on such excursions I find I am missing little. There used to be excitement. Sometimes plates would fly and fists smash. Now, instead, sneering groups blackening reputations and calling it fun. In less tolerant communities it would bring out the horsewhip and tar.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"I have tried, but I've failed," he writes bitterly. "I've made a terrible mess of everything. What's the use of living?"

Once upon a time there was another man who made a mess of things.

He was a hard, headstrong, ruthless man and his were no common "messes." He hounded poor, helpless men. He tortured and killed them because they did not believe as he believed.

For hundreds of miles people shuddered at his name, cursed him in secret. But he did not care. He went right on making a nightmare of life.

Then one day suddenly he saw a great light. He saw how wicked he had been, how brutal, and despair and humiliation came over him.

He lay on the ground, his mind blanked by shame and remorse. He who had been the cruel Saul of Tarsus arose from the ground to become the great Saint Paul.

Yet, even after he had seen that great light, he was often Saulish instead of Paulish. He knew how life should be lived, but he could not always live it that way.

Often, though there was a splendid vision in his heart, his actions were petty and peevish and conceited. He would have his own way! And he would continue to say disagreeable things to people who didn't follow his way.

How often and often he must have lain with his face on the ground, hopeless and ashamed, hating himself, wondering if life were worth living!

Yet he went on living; trying to make up for all he had done; trying to be the man he wanted to be.

And just before the end he said a very beautiful thing. It had been a long struggle. He had made dreadful mistakes. Nothing could ever undo some of those mistakes, nor take the sting out of their memory. Now he was going out, a lonely, tired old man, to find his God.

But before he went, he said this to his own discouraged soul:

"I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith."

He did not say he had always done right. He knew he hadn't.

He did not even say he had done the best he could. It had been, on the whole, a good fight, but there had been many a misstep in it.

BUT HE HAD KEPT THE FAITH!

He had seen a vision of goodness. He had come to believe in goodness. He had wanted to be good. Always, whatever he had done outwardly, he had really loved goodness—held fast to his faith in goodness. He had kept the faith.

And in spite of all he suffered, that belief in goodness had made life worth living to that erring, blundering man we call Saint Paul.

Often he hated himself. Often he hated life. But he never hated goodness.

And as long as he could keep his faith in goodness and worship its beauty and nobility, life was worth while.

Many times, when I am discouraged and disgusted with myself, I think of that old man and those words which have come down through many centuries. And I am comforted.

I hope they have comforted you too, my dear, and given you fresh hope.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Can you sit still when it is the time for you to be still?

Is there anyone more annoying than the person who wriggles in his chair, frequently leaves it, walks about, sits down a few minutes—then jumps up again?

In nearly every gathering there is one or more uneasy person.

In the theater they move about so much that those behind them must be constantly changing position to see the stage.

In overland busses there is the fellow who walks the aisles.

Most folks who travel want to look ahead at the road.

It is a habit gained from riding much in automobiles.

But the man who stalks the aisles is constantly shutting off views.

Then there is the guest in the house who never sits still.

Legs crossed, uncrossed, recrossed, right to left turn in chair and reverse, tapping meanwhile or fingering a shoe lace, etc.

You know the kind with fingers clasping and unclasping, twitching.

Children may be expected to be fidgety, but when it comes to grownups it is unpardonable, shows lack of self control and no thought of the comfort of others.

Can you sit still when you should?

One reason why a bachelor's heart grows so callous around 45 is because it has gone all through his life bumping along on skid-chains.

A little love, like a little knowledge, is a dangerous thing. It is only when they come in wholesale quantities, that they are worth sitting up evenings to cultivate.

There is always SOME sweet, sympathetic woman ready and eager to undertake the task of pulling a man together, again, when he is "all broken up" over his quarrel with another woman.

Marriage is the point at which a girl stops looking for a new love affair every spring, and prepares to content herself with a new hat or a new washing machine.

No matter how a woman may harden her heart against him, as long as her vanity remains as soft and absorbent as a sponge, a man can always get around her.

* * *

This is the season when nearly every man believes in "eternal love" for one woman after another.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Wanderer

In narrow bounds always my life has been;
For me, no distant peaks and plains to tread;
But by familiar out and in
I still have plodded while the swift years sped.
The travelers must wonder that I go
So well contented with my native place.
I, who have never seen the great seas flow
Or looked on Nature's far, exotic face.

Yet I have ventured out uncharted ways,
Into dim regions where no
other trod,
For every soul in restless journeys
strays
To seek life's meanings and the face of God;
This questing wanderer who dwells with me
Explores strange realms beyond
Earth's farthest sea.

LIVING IN COUNTRY

By Winifred Black

The lawyer and his wife have gone down to their country estate for the summer, and the lawyer is delighted.

He's not especially fond of the country, and it is a little early yet for birds and trees and flowers; but he's been having a rather bad time of it paying for his smart town apartment and incidental expenses.

Clients are fewer and fewer, and he simply cannot collect one cent of his old debts; so he has given up the apartment and taken to his heels. I mean, to the country.

It isn't a very large estate—this little affair of the lawyer's. To be perfectly plain about it, it's just about half an acre. In the center of it is a plain little house made of "shakes." That's the name they call the big singles, up in the lumber country where they come from.

There are three rooms in the house—a living room, a kitchenette and a bathroom—all finished, or unfinished, in rough wood, with the rafters showing.

The timbers along the wall are going to make very good shelves for pottery and things; so the lawyer's wife declares.

There's an open sleeping porch at the back of the house. That's for fine weather. In rainy weather the two couches in the living room will serve as beds.

In the living room there's a stove—an old-fashioned, Mid-Victorian stove—the kind that has doors in front that slide back and let you see the fire dancing and flickering, and makes you believe there's an old-fashioned fireplace in the room.

The other night it rained, and the lawyer and his wife were tired. They had been raking the leaves off the ground and digging up the earth and planting bulbs all day, and when night came and the rain began to fall they went into the living room and lit the fire.

Then they set their little table in front of the fire, and made some tea on top of the stove, and broiled a pair of juicy chops in front of it. They had a salad of lettuce, as crisp as all well-behaved lettuce should be, and chives, with green onions, and a touch of garlic in the dressing. And when they finished dinner and washed up the plates and the two cups and saucers, they took hold of hands and danced around the little old-fashioned stove they had bought at a second-hand store, and pretended to each other that they were little and happy again, back home in the old country, where an open fire was a part of every-day life.

Do you know, I don't believe the lawyer and his wife will want to come back to town next fall. They say they don't see what they thought they needed so much money for, anyhow.

It's interesting, isn't it?

And the best part of it is—it is all absolutely true, every word and every syllable of it.

The Way Out

No. 4—Modernize Anti-Trust Laws.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE prolonged business depression and far-reaching unemployment constitute a broad challenge to political and business leadership. Instead of decrying the lack of leadership, the Hearst newspapers desire to make such contribution as they can to constructive, forward-looking economic leadership. The depression should be attacked simultaneously on all fronts. The emergency calls for the spirit of a field marshal who can co-ordinate and synchronize various remedial campaigns.

The social futility of a mere negative attitude toward organized business, in which government wields a policeman's club, is amply demonstrated in the present state of stagnation of industry and commerce.

The old-fashioned panacea of unbridled competition has not assured an equilibrium in which labor is fully employed at high real wages.

WIDESPREAD malnutrition amidst surpluses constitutes an indictment against economic management in the large.

To some extent, government bears a responsibility, for the antiquated anti-trust laws still stigmatize efforts toward rational co-operation among business competitors as a criminal act.

The effect is to put a premium on anarchy in business.

The time has come for the American people to envisage business in new terms as a mechanism for enabling large groups, such as factory workers, to exchange the products of their hours of labor with the results of the efforts of other productive groups, such as the farmers.

Functional efficiency under modern complex conditions of mass production and the use of high-tensioned power depends on delicately adjusted social engineering.

TO the extent that the rough and tumble Sherman act, conceived in the spirit of 1890 when business organization was more primitive, upsets balance, federal legislation for regulating business should be thoroughly revamped.

The new goal should be to create an economic equilibrium, on which full time employment of labor necessarily depends.

Instead of the existing arbitrary principle of law, forbidding business acts in restraint of trade, modern thinkers have proposed the substitute doctrine of making the test of the propriety of business contracts whether they are in the public interest.

The older restraint of trade doctrine has sometimes been literally interpreted to sanction anti-social acts such as wastage of oil and other precious natural resources.

SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH, of Massachusetts, in Senate Bill 3256, has translated into proposed law the newer thinking about modes of modernizing the anti-trust laws. Instead of acting in the punitive spirit, the Senator has described his proposed measure as a law "to protect and foster trade and commerce."

The technique is to leave the Sherman and the Clayton acts on the statute books, but to lift business from the menace of a legal straitjacket by the provision that any contracts which the Federal Trade Commission, subject to a review of the courts, holds to be in the public interest, will be exempt from prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

Little that Congress could do now would have such a beneficial effect on business psychology as prompt passage of a sound measure for modernizing the anti-trust laws.
